SEARLES' EX-SWEETHEART JOINS HIM AT ATLANTIC CITY

ARTIST IS DISGUSTED WITH HUB

Will Never Set Foot Here Again After Suit; Plans Home in New Jersey

Albert Victor Searles, millionaire Boston artist, victim of blackmailers, man of many loves, who has been missing from Boston for the greater part of a year, is now living in New Jersey.

This was learned by the Boston American today from a close friend of the now-famous artist. He has decided to settle there and has laid plans for a home near Atlantic City.

"Searles has shaken the dust of Boston from his feet," said the friend, "and except for coming here to defend himself in the $2,000,000 breach of promise suit against him by Miss Mary Johnson of Rockland, he will never touch foot here again

"He is sick of Boston and the blackmailers who fleeced him here. He thinks there is no place like Atlantic City and so will be near it."

A few days ago Searles sent his chauffeur, Charles Parshly, former moving picture operator of this city, here with his auto to take some of his belonging to the New Jersey city. The rest of the personal property of the artist was crated and shipped by rail.

FAMOUS KIMONA.

Included among the many valuable articles that Parshly took was the famous Japanese kimona made entirely of glass and silk, said to be the only one of its kind in the world. The kimona is made of a myraid of tiny mirrors held together by silken cords.

When attired in this peculiar raimant Searles is said to have presented a striking appearance. The little mirrors tinkled like tiny sheep bells at every step of the eccentric artist. It is said to be worth several thousand dollars.

With Searles in New Jersey, according to his friend, is one of his old-time sweethearts from Lowell. A year ago last January he presented her with a high priced automobile which she drove about Lowell and Boston for months. Now she and the automobile have departed for New Jersey.

"Searles left his luxurious apartment on Commonwealth avenue a year ago when he learned that a policeman had visited the apartment one evening while he was out. He was gone when the officer returned again," said his friend.

"After leaving Boston, Victor went directly to Lowell, where he was secreted at the home of one of his sweethearts for several days. Then he went direct to Nova Scotia, where he spent some time sight-seeing along the Saquany River.

SEIZED AS BOOTLEGGER.

"He had his machine with him and made frequent trips to Montreal and Toronto. On one of these trips rumor has it that he was overhauled for transporting liquor through the provinces.

"Victor had with him Charles Parshly. Parshly took his motorcycle and sidecar with him, and many miles of Nova Scotia were covered by Searles in the sidecar of the motorcycle.

"When Winter came Searles moved down to the more pleasing clime of New Jersey. There he intends to settle."

TO PRESERVE ANDREW JOHNSON'S OLD SHOP

Nashville, Tenn., May 16.—Contract for the erection of a building to house the tailor shop at Greenville, Tenn., where former President Andrew Johnson once worked, was awarded to a construction firm there today by the Andrew Johnson Memorial Commission.

With a Car You Can Answer the "Call of the Road"

Haven't you longed for the exhilaration of a brisk spin over the "Open Road?" Maybe you've gone without a car because the price of a new one is beyond your means. But that needn't prevent your owning one.

Every day in the "Automobile Exchange" columns of The American are advertised cars of excellent makes and in excellent condition—reasonably priced.

Individuals and dealers often want to turn used cars into cash quickly.

Look through the "Automobile Exchange" columns today—if you don't find just the car that strikes your fancy, look again tomorrow, or if there's some particular make you have in mind, write an ad of your own. Leave it with or

TRIES TO KILL SELF IN LOVE QUARREL

MISS MARION G. FISHER

WOMEN AGAINST CHILD LABOR DECISION

An "unfortunate decision" is how Boston child welfare workers regard the decision of the United States Supreme Court which held the Federal Child Labor law to be unconstitutional.

"The decision of the Supreme Court is an unfortunate decision," said Miss Ethel M. Johnson, deputy commissioner of labor of the State Board of Labor and Industries.

"The decision will probably create a bad situation in some of the Southern states where the standard of State laws is not up to the Federal law which has just been heud to be unconstitutional."

" think it's a sad thing that the United States can't protect its children," said Mrs. Lois B. Rantoul of the Women's Trade Union League. "The Supreme Court passed favorably on the oleo margerine law. If it could do that I can't understand why it couldn't have found a way to uphold the Federal Child Labor law.

"I think the decision will not effect conditions in Massachusetts, but in the South, where conditions are extremely bad now, they will become worse."

Mrs. Madeline H. Appel, executive secretary of the Massachusetts Child Labor Committe, sand: "The Supreme Court decision will effect Massachusetts very little. I was not surprised at the decision, as the court was "dealing with a technical question.

"It is too bad that it did not deal with the matter on a broader basis of public good. There is something the matter with the system when such good results as the Federal law brought about can be nullified by such a decision.

"The decision does not mean a letting down of the bars in Massachusetts. It may seriously effect conditions here in one way as we are constantly beset by employers who claim Massachusetts is at a disadvantage because of competition of other States where the child labor standards are lower."

PROPOSES SERVICE CHARGE ON PARCEL POST

Washington, May 16.—Postmaster-General Work announced today that in view of "the fact that increased costs of handling parcel post mail necessitates a corresponding advance in parcel post rates," he was writing to a large number of parcel post users to get their views on proposed changes. The changes suggested, Dr. Work said, included proposals to fix a service charge of one or two cents on each parcel mailed, regardless of weight or zone, and to readjust rates by weight and zone.

MISS CECIL LEITCH WNS OPENING GOLF MATCH

Sandwich, England, May 16.—Miss Cecil Leitch, British women's open golf champion, today defeated Mrs. Craig in a preliminary round for the championship of the Prince's course. The score was 8 and 9.

Miss Joyce Wethered defeated Mrs. Duncan, 8 and 7.

FIANCE FOILS SUICIDE OF GIRL

Miss Marion G. Fisher, twenty-one years old, attempted to commit suicide by swallowing poison in an office of the old Fitchburg railroad station on Causeway street.

She was saved by the intervention of Walter Stevens, twenty-six years old, her sweetheart, who knocked the vial of poison from her hands before she could drink the contents.

Miss Fisher had entered the office where Stevens was working, coming down the corridor from her own office. She drew the bottle of iodine from her bag and raised it to her lips.

Stevens looked up as she entered. Sprang from his desk and thwarted her.

The girl sank, weeping, into a chair, and Stevens took her to her home at No. 7 Gleason street, Malden. There he told her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Fisher, what had happened. They put the girl to bed and summoned a nurse.

Her attempt at suicide was prompted by quarrels with Stevens, aggravated by a nervous condition brought on by overwork.

Her parents declared that Stevens was in no way to blame, and expressed cordial feelings towards him.

Miss Fisher, who graduated from the Malden High School in 1917, and later from the New England Conservatory of Music, was formerly a stenographer in the Boston & Maine offices. At the first of this year she became private secretary to James R. McAnarney, assistant freight agent. Stevens, who lives on Centre street, Dorchester, is employed in the traffic department.

DR. STEVENS TO GO ON TRIAL MONDAY

Grace Logue.

Dr. Michael M. Stevens of Woburn, who was indicted by the Middlesex County Grand Jury upon a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Grace Logue, will go on trial next Monday before Judge John F. Brown in East Cambridge Superior Court.

This announcement was made today by Assistant District Attorney Charles W. Blood, who will prosecute the case for the government.

The indictment of Dr. Stevens followed the finding in his office on last Christmas morning of the body of Miss Logue. She had been employed by him as a nurse. At the time, Dr Stevens pleaded not guilty and was released in $10,000 bail

FLAYS JAIL AS INJUSTICE TO WITNESSES

Judge Murray of the Municipal Court today denounced the lack of a proper place in which to hold material witnesses in murder and other important criminal cases. He said the Charles street jail is not a fit place in which to hold such persons for indefinite periods of time.

The court's statement followed the request of Patrolmen Murphy and Augusta that Julio E. Stifan, nineteen years old and but five days in the country from Porto Rico, be held as a material witness against Raymon Velez, also a Porto Rican, charged with the murder of Pablo Bfarie, of Washington street, South End.

Vales is alleged to have seized an axe in a wood yard on Bristol street where the men were at work, and to have cut Bfarie's head open. The latter died.

The officers said Stifan was the only witness to the argument between the two men, and asked he be held.

"I shall do it," said Judge Murray, "though I dislike to send any innocent person to the Charles street jail. It is time the Legislature took some step to provide a decent place in which material witnesses can be held, instead of sending them to associate with criminals and law breakers."

ALIENISTS DECLARE MRS. RAIZEN SANE

Lilian S. Raizen.

New York, May 16.—Mrs. Lillian S. Raizen, who shot and killed Dr. Abraham Glickstein in Brooklyn last December, is sane, according to two alienists who were appointed to examine the woman. They reported to Judge Martin today that she is not only sane now, but was sane when the shooting took place.

ACCUSED EX-OFFICER MISSING FROM TRIAL

Former Patrolman Oziah H. Beauregard failed to appear for trial in the Suffolk Superior Court today when the charge of felonious assault upon Olga Rathgeb, now Mrs. John Koreazopoulous, on August 29, 1921, came up for hearing. District Attorney O'Brien asked for a warrant for his arrest and for the forfeiture of his $500 bail. Beauregard was indicted in April after hearings before lower courts and police investigating bodies. It is alleged he attacked Miss Rathgeb on the grounds of the Parker Hill Hospital two days before her marriage. Beauregard resigned from the police force.

DOLLAR WILL NOW BUY 10,000 OF THOSE KRONEN

Vienna, May 16 (By the Associated Press).—The Austrian krone made a new low record yesterday, when it fell to 10,000 to the dollar. Manufacturers and merchants bought freely, which augurs further depreciation. The drop is ascribed to the action of the government in agreeing to pay all the civil servants a bonus of triple their salary, and adding other allowances, the whole entailing the expenditure of many billions of kronen.

BAKER CONFERS ON HUB POSTAL CHANGES

Postmaster Baker and Superintendent of Mails Hamlin of Boston conferred in Washington today with Assistant Postmaster General Bartlett relative to changes to be made in personnel, methods and equipment in Boston postoffices. During a recent visit to Boston Mr. Bartlett termed Boston's main postoffice antique.

BRIDE IN JANUARY IS SLAPPED IN MAY

Orin Smith, of Brook Bridge road, Stoneham, charged with assault upon his wife Mabel, paid a fine of $5 in the Woburn Court. Smith was married in January, after a short acquaintance with his wife, formerly Mrs. Mabel Nutz. They lived together two weeks. She returned home recently.

CURLEY REJECTS BIDS FOR ELECTRIC HOISTS

All the bids received by the city for the five electrically operated wagon derricks to be used at the Maverick square tunnel station were rejected today by Mayor Culey as being excessive. The contract for sewerage work in B and Seventh street, South Boston, was awarded to Joseph P. McCabe for $27,052.

9 HURT IN BLAST AT POTTERY PLANT

East Liverpool, O., May 16.—Nine persons, eight men and a woman, employed as kiln drawers, were injured and a pottery kiln was blown to pieces in a gas explosion at the McNicol Corns Pottery Company plant in Wellsville, near here today. Two of the victims are in the East Liverpool Hospital badly injured.

"ROMEO" KEYS LEFT ESTATE OF $90,000

John Baker Keys

The will of John Baker (Romeo) Keys, whose sensational marital affairs occupied the attention of the courts here and in Cincinnati before his death last April, was filed for probate in the Dedham Probate Court today.

The bulk of the $90,000 estate is conveyed to form a trust fund for the benefit of a nephew, Howard Keys, of Hollister, N. Y., and a number of bequests are made to former servants and friends of the testator.

Among these latter are $1,000 to Dr. H. H. Colburn, $500 to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Buckley, $1,000 to Robert E. Lee of Cincinnati, $500 to John C. Schmidt, former chauffeur of Mr. Keys, and 250 each to Maggie Jones and Anna Potter, formerly maid and housekeeper in the Keys establishment. Any income left over after $2,500 annually from the trust fund created for the nephew is to be paid to Miss Mary E. Keys of Cincinnati, a sister.

No mention is made in the will, which was drawn September 15, 1921, of the former Mrs. Keys, who was Miss Florence Girardin, and at the time of her marriage to Mr. Keys, an elevator operator at the Harvard Club.

The tangle that followed the announcement of the engagement of Miss Girardin and Romeo Keys involved the courts of Boston and Cincinnati, where Mr. Keys was taken by the conservator of his fortune immediately after it became known that Keys intended to wed the elevator girl.

In Cincinnati Mr. Keys was commited to an asylum as insane. He escaped and came back to Boston. Here he married Miss Girardin, only to bring suit for divorce a short time later. The marriage was annulled on the ground that Mr. Keys was insane when married. Mr. Keys paid Miss Girardin $10,000 in settlement of all her claims against his estate.

STEEL MERGER IS RATIFIED

New York, May 16.—The Bethlehem-Lackawanna steel merger was ratified today by directors of both companies.

Bethlehem will pay for the Lackawanna properties in 7 per cent. preferred stock and Class B common stock, giving an aggregate amount of the classes equal at par value to the par value of Lackawanna's outstanding stock, $35,108,500.

Forty per cent. of the payment will be made in 7 per cent. preferred and 60 per cent. in Class B common, Bethlehem reserving the right, however, to reduce the amount of Class B common paid by $1,543,400 par value upon payment of approximately $300,000 in cash.

Bethlehem assumes all the debts and obligation of Lackawanna.

Bethlehem stockholders will be asked soon to authorize the additional amount of stock necessary to consummate the purchase, President Eugene G. Grace of Bethlehem announced.

COUNTESS IS RAPIDLY REGAINING HER HEALTH

Countess DeLesteyrie

Newport, May 16.—Countess Guy de Lesteyrie, who recently submitted to a major operation in Paris, is convalescent, according to news received here by friends.

The Countess, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Henry Warren, is taking exercise at present by walking a distance of four miles daily.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren who were with their daughter at the time of the operation, have returned to this country and expect to open Sea Fields, their Newport home, on June 1. It is hoped that their daughter may pay them a short visit soon.

ADVENTISTS ATTACK SUNDAY "BLUE LAWS"

San Francisco, May 16.—Sunday "blue laws" have been attacked by members of the religious liberty department of the Seventh Day Adventists' National Convention in session here. The whole social and political fabric of society "is permeated with the spirit of paternalism and sumptuary legislation, certain to cause serious trouble unless checked," said C. S. Longacre, secretary of the department.

Temperament Ruined Home, Love Letters of Cook Reveal

"Must Have My Freedom" Ex-Harvard Man Wrote While Studying in Spain.

A Harvard scholar's temperamental revolt against ordinary family ties; his exaltation of his career above his wife's peace of mind, and his painful need of money from her to carry on his studies—

Mrs. Harriett B. Cook.

The three motives run like threats through the extraordinary letters written by Walter W. S. Cook, then a Harvard instructor, to Mrs. Harriett Buck Greenfield Cook of Cambridge — letters that completed the wreck of the Cook home.

Publication of revealing docu- these revealing documents begins today in the Boston American.

They were written by Cook in 1920, while he was touring Europe at his wife's expense, studying and preparing to write books.

Introduced in evidence by Mrs. Cook's attorney, Jesse D. Crook, at the Cook divorce trial, and combined with Crook's cross-examination of Cook to break down his defense to charges of cruelty, they resulted in disproving the husband's allegation that his wife had been unfaithful and secured her a divorce decree nisi.

Walter W. S. Cook.

The letters are sure to arouse a storm of feeling in Harvard circles, and in many other circles, as well, as indicating the troubles that beset the domestic happiness of a temperamental scholar in love with his work and a wife in love with the scholar. The letters:

"ILLNESS ONLY IDIOCY."

June 3, 1920, Paris

Dearest: Of course I am sorry that you are ill, but you are in that condition so much of the time that I regard it as normal, in fact I depict you to be ill all the time. Of course there is no excuse for it. All illness is merely idiocy.

I'm not surprised that in returning from Florida you were ill. I knew you would be as long as you go traveling the country you'll always be worn out. You must stay in one place long enough to get settled.

As a matter of fact you probably spent at least $4,000 or $5,000. I don't wonder you are ill and tired, but don't blame me, and try to drag me back from Spain before I have finished my work. If you are tired it is your own funeral. I thought you'd be better off in Cambridge, with plenty of leisure time to straighten out the house. But I hope you saved all the money you said you did.

Well, I love you, and I don't have to repeat it, but if you go ahead with your ideas and try to force them down my throat you will gradually kill my affection instead of increasing it, as you should. You think only of your own point of view, and you don't study the psychology of the other persons. You don't know human nature—well, you must begin, that's all.

INSISTED ON FREEDOM.

> WELL, I love you, and I don't have to repeat it, but if you go ahead with your ideas and try to force them down my throat you will gradually kill my affection instead of increasing it, as you should. You think only of your own point of view, and you don't study the psychology of the other person's. You don't know human nature—well, you must begin, that's all.—From one of Professor Walter W. S. Cook's letters to his wife.

Now I love you devotedly, but you must let me do what I want. You must leave me absolutely free and give me all the liberty in the world. Otherwise, I will react on you and blame you. You have a habit of trying to run things, you try to advise me in my work and as to my friends and everything else. Well, you know nothing of my work. I know my friends better than you do, and I know what I want to do.

I know that this is only temporary and that if you work and do your part and leave me alone to do my work, that things will gradually work out and when I come to Europe next time you'll be able to come with me and give me your undivided attention and love, and won't be bothering me and spoiling the entire trip worrying about your mother and Lyman. You always have to worry about somebody somewhere and spoil your good times for yourself and me.

Now all I ask of you is to do your work here in the house this Summer. Straighten things out as I tell you, so that when I come home you will have finished it, and I can step in and do something for you. But if you don't do this, why it'll mess up everything. I will be furious and it will give the entire year a bad start.

Jesse D. Crook.

But I want you to realize that I want my liberty to run my things in my own way. I want to send off my own laundry, take care of my own clothes, and not have you butting in.

With much love for you,

Walter.

WAITING FOR MONEY.

Paris, June 5, 1920

Dear Sweetheart:—

I sent you a cable today as follows; "Ill. pneumonia. Cable money immediately Harjes." Now I have entirely recovered from the slight attack of pneumonia. I sent, this, however, to stir you out of your sluggish slothfulness. When I was in Lyons I wrote you early in April and the letter should have reached you by the 20th or 15th of May. I explained that I wanted a reserve fund of $200 or $300.

Now, either you paid no attention to my letter, or else you didn't leave proper instructions. I cabled you also over a week ago. I have heard nothing from you, and I sent another cable to stir you up into action. Of course this sluggishness will only react on yourself as well as on me.

I am entirely well, and am merely sitting around waiting for money, and every day I stay here I'll be two days later coming home.

I cabled you a week ago that I would sail September 15. I have sat around for a week, and I will not sail before September 25, and if no money comes for another five or six days it will be October 1 before I sail.

I am due in Barcelona the 15th of this month at the latest to meet important scholars who are leaving the city, and if I'm held up there it will raise the devil with my work. Now, wake up and get busy. Use your head. From now on, because of this additional delay, you can count on me sailing October 1. Any further delays on your part will postpone it still later.

With love,

WALTER.

ARMOUR ORDERED TO UNSCRAMBLE

Washington, May 16.—The Federal Trade Commission, announcing today it was attempting to do what the late J. P. Morgan declared could not be done, issued an order to "unscramble" Armour & Company and the E. H. Stanton Company of Spokane. The commission declared the acquisition of the E. H. Stanton Company by Armour & Company, was a violation of the Clayton Anti-Trust Act. It ordered Armour to dispose of all capital stock of the Stanton Company.

THEFT CHARGE BY AUTOMAT NEWSY

For months somebody has been rifling the tin box he left on his paper stand so customers could make their own change while he canvassed the early morning Beacon street cars. His stand stood at Beacon street and Audubon road.

Today the police arrested Nathan Carroll of Rawson road, Brookline. He is charged with stealing 29 cents. In Roxbury Court his case was continued.

BLOW ON CHIN CAUSED DEATH OF TABER

Eye-Witnesses Tell of Fight Between Youths at Groveland

Nineteen-year-old Paul Claridge's accusation against his chum, Herman K. Taber charging the latter with circulating stories about him, Taber's refusal to fight, and then the latter's denunciation of Claridge, followed by a smashing blow on the chin delivered by Claridge caused Taber's death.

These details, comprising the first complete story of how Taber met his death, are presented by the Boston American today, following Claridge's indictment on a manslaughter charge by the Essex County Grand Jury at Newburyport. He was to appear today in the Essex County Superior Court at Lawrence.

It was Curtis Carter, Arthur Parker and George Bouvier, eye-witnesses, who gave a graphic description before the Grand Jury of the fight between Claridge and Taber, returning to their homes last Friday night after attending a dance in the Groveland Town Hall with Frances and Margaret Sonier of West Newbury.

They were waiting on the front steps of the Town Hall shortly after midnight when they were joined by Taber. A few minutes later, they said, Claridge drove up in his machine, and accused Taber of circulating stories about him.

The party of five moved several hundred feet from the steps to a grassy plot. Claridge, his voice trembling with anger, challenged his chum to fight. Taber, still outwardly calm, exclaimed: "What's the use. I've got my best clothes on." Claridge may a heated reply and then witnesses said Taber exclaimed:

"Oh, go to ——!" With a lunge toward Taber, Claridge, according to the testimony, struck Taber a smashing blow on the chin as Taber was putting his hands up half-heartedly in defence. Taber fell. There was but one blow struck.

Her face pale, but otherwise seemingly composed, Frances Sonier declared she was not the cause of the fight.

Miss Sonier told how the boys were "pals," of one always being sure to be present where the other was, and of the many enjoyable affairs the youths, her sister, Margaret, and she had attended. She declared she knew Paul was heart broken over his chum's death and was certain the youth intended no serious injury to Taber.

APPEAL TO DAIL FROM BELFAST

Belfast, May 16 (By the Associated Press).—The Sinn Fein executive body has adopted a resolution "in the name of the persecuted and terrorized minority in this city," calling upon the Dail Eireann in Dublin forthwith to establish a stable government.

"We are convinced that one of the best means to acquire peace in Belfast is to establish peace in the rest of Ireland," says the resolution. "Until the special police paid by the British government are disbanded there can be no peace. We condemn and deplore the rule of the gun and call upon the Dail to take whatever means necessary to substitute the rule of the people."

Belfast, May 16.—The Galteemore creamery in Tipperary has been burned. It was one of those taken over from the owners, the Cleeves Brothers, last Saturday by the workers, who hoisted a red flag over it.

SALARY INCREASES ANNOUNCED BY MAYOR

Promotions and salary increases were announced by Mayor Curley today at City Hall. Among the lucky ones are nine in the Soldiers' Relief and six in the Park Department. The Mayor also announced the temporary appointments of Miss Ruth A. Peterson, George T. Sullivan and George T. Latimer. Among the promotions are those of John S. Donnelly of the printing department to be foreman. Martin F. Cavanaugh of the Fire Department is made a constable in place of James H. Wilson. A number of transfers in the Public Works and the Transit Department were announced.

2 GIVEN STIFF TERMS FOR SAFE ROBBERIES

John Owens and George Bates pleaded guilty today in Supreme Court of robberies in the Ashmont Station of the New Haven Railroad and the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company's South Boston office. Owens was sentenced to from 5 to 10 years in State Prison, Bates to 5 years and one month in the Reformatory. In both robberies safes were blown open and rifled and a total of $1,100 stolen.

ROLLINS CASE POLL IS TAKEN

George Rollins, twenty-four years old, of Roxbury, convicted of the murder of Ordway Hall in an A. & P. store, today seemed a step nearer a new trial when the legislative Committee on Judiciary began a poll of its members on the bill to allow him to appeal from his conviction. The first votes were said to have been in favor of the bill.

The bill was started at the close of a public hearing during which District Attorney O'Brien and Major Thomas L. Walsh, counsel for Rollins, asserted that no matter if a man be innocent, he is deprived of the right of a new trial unless the appeal is made within a year of the date of conviction.

Hall was murdered in 1917. George Rollins was convicted in 1919. Jesse Murphy, inmate of a Philadelphia penitentiary, confessed a few months ago that he was guilty of the murder of Hall and that George Rollins was innocent.

2 JAILED FOR CHARGING EXTRA 5-CENT FARE

New York, May 16.—Convicted of an offense against State law charging an extra five-cent fare, S. W. Huff and Robert C. Lee, receivers of the Steinway lines of the New York & Queens County Railway Company, were locked up in Queens County Jail today.

"TERROR" MAY DISRUPT RUSH HOUSEHOLD

By GRACE DESCHAMPS.

"Would to God that someone could run down the gang that is hounding my wife."

Albert E. Rush

Albert E. Rush, husband of the Dorchester woman who declares she has been pursued by a mysterious band for six years, gave vent to the anger and exasperation which has smouldered under the continual terrorization of his wife and which now threatens his domestic happiness.

"I am afraid my wife suspects me. The suspicion is maddening. No man and wife were ever better pals than Lois and I. We have been everywhere together. Nothing ever came between us until this damnable thing has finally borne suspicion, and my wife, most naturally, is beginning to wonder if I am not connected with it."

With undoubted sincerity Rush swore vengeance upon the Terror that insidiously has wedged its sinister way between his wife and himself.

"When I stop to think about it I realize how ridiculous it is to even think of my husband in terms of anything underhanded," began Mrs. Rush, looking reassuringly at her husband.

"I am not out for publicity," continued Rush. "No one ever had a healthier distaste for publicity than I. It is only because I have become desperate at my own inability to cope with the situation that I have called upon the American to take up the investigation."

"One day, after being shown tracks on the kitchen floor, I determined to trap the marauder. At the advice of my neighbor, I bought zins and copper to prepare the device something like a burglar alarm. Nothing ever came of it."

U. S. TREASURY ROOF AGAIN CATCHES FIRE

Washington, May 16.—Fire broke out on the roof of the United States Treasury today for the third time in four months. The fire was discovered in about the same position on the roof that a fire occurred about two weeks ago. Both previous fires were believed to have been caused by apparatus used by workmen engaged in raising the roof to permit the building of another story.

ASPARAGUS COMES HERE BY AIR

The Fokker airplane F-3, owned by the Netherlands Aircraft Corporation, will arrive at the Army Air Service Field at Framingham, from Mullica Hill, N. J., at noon on Wednesday with 800 pounds of freshly cut asparagus from New Jersey market gardens for Boston commission merchants. In addition there will be bunches for presentation to Governor Cox, Mayor Curley and other prominent Bostonians.

On the return trip the F-3 will carry 400 pounds of Boston-made confectionery and, probably, 400 pounds of shoes to New York.

Wife of Auto Driver in Chicago Labor Murder Held

By International News Service.

Chicago, May 16.—Margaret Miller, thirty-two years old, wife of the identified driver of the "death car," from which two policemen were shot and killed last week in Chicago's bomb and gun war, was arrested today.

Questioning of the woman, the police believe, will reveal the "inside" operations of the terrorist gang which held forth in a West Side saloon, where her husband, John Miller, was a bartender.

While Mrs. Miller was being held law enforcement officials went into conference to prepare their case against the alleged "higher ups"—"Big Tim" Murphy, "Frenchy" Mader and "Con" Shea.

OUR ANCESTORS TREATED CONSTIPATION NATURALLY

Constipation is as old as the world. Most people must fight it from birth to death. Some use harsh cathartics or metallic drugs that force relief, but do not strengthen the organs so that they perform their functions normally.

Our early ancestors turned to Nature for pleasant relief. From herbs, barks, roots and leaves blessed with laxative properties they prepared a pleasant, effective extract. Such a remedy as our forefathers made is Dr. True's Elixir, the True Family Laxative and Worm Expeller. Prescribed for his patients originally seventy-one years ago by Dr. J. F. True, a conscientious Maine country doctor, it has become a household favorite. Contains no metallic drugs—just pure extracts that purify the bowels as they cleanse. Used over 70 years. 40c—60c—$1.20.

MRS. STILLMAN RESTS HER CASE

New York, May 16.—Attorneys for Mrs. Anne U. Stillman decided to rest her case in the court fight she is waging against her husband, James A. Stillman, the banker, who is seeking a divorce and denies he is the father of Baby Guy Stillman.

They believe the denial Mrs. Stillman has made that she is the author of letters Fred Beauvais is alleged to have sold to Stillman's attorneys for $15,000 is sufficient grounds on which to rest.

John E. Mack, temporary guardian for Baby Guy, is confident that the infant will be found to be Stillman's son and entitled to share in the $6,000,000 trust fund established for the Stillman children.

Mr. Stillman has charged that Beauvais, a Canadian Indian guide is the parent of the child.

ROBERTSON MUM AS MISS MARY SAILS

New York, May 16.—At his aunt's home in Bloomfield, N. Y., Alexander E. Robertson refused to comment on the sailing from New York of Miss Mary Culberson, daughter of United States Senator Charles E. Culberson of Texas, whose love affair with Robertson has recently been in the spotlight. "I believe this affair will be cleared up eventually. Until then I am pledged to silence."

PAID $16 FOR 2 QUARTS OF GIN, SAYS OFFICER

Benjamin Paine of Hemenway street, Back Bay, appeared before Judge Ahern in Roxbury Court today, charged with making an unlawful sale of liquor to Patrolman Ray McDonald of the Back Bay station. He pleaded not guilty and his case was continued until May 24. Officer McDonald said he purchased two quarts of gin for $6 at the accused man's apartments.

WOMAN DIES, FIFTH TRAIN WRECK VICTIM

Buffalo, N. Y., May 16.—The Black Diamond Express wreck of last Saturday claimed its fifth victim when Mrs. Arthur C. Derorie, of Geneva, N. Y., died at St. Jerome's Hospital, at Batavia, from a fractured skull.

MAX MITCHELL'S SHOW CIRCUIT IS SUED

Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen today filed, in the name of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company, a bill in equity in the Supreme Court against Max Mitchell, former president of the trust company; Ida P. Mitchell, Benjamin A. Prager, John C. Bills and Hugh Lester, to clear title to stock in the Empire Circuit and other securities.

These securities, said Mr. Allen in his bill, constitute the control of the Empire Circuit, which includes moving picture theatres in Portland, Me., Lowell, Amesbury, Newburyport, Waltham and Fall River in Massachusetts, and Newport, R. I.

Mr. Allen declares the title to some of the securities is clouded and he asks that the court decide the rights of the respondents in the matter. He also asks that the court issue an injunction forbidding the respondents interfering with the proposed sale of the stock, which the bank commissioner says he regards as desirable now owing to the continued and steady depreciation of the securities in value.

MEDBURY

Says Most Department Stores Give Away Samples of Food--This Is a Good Way to Entertain Your Friends at Luncheon

By John P. Medbury

The food demonstration booths that they have in the different department stores are wonderful. If it wasn't for these booths a lot of people would go hungry.

If a man can discover what store is giving away samples of food then all he has to worry about is finding a place to sleep.

If the town has enough stores, a guy can start with soup and end up with pudding.

He may have to walk three or four blocks between courses, but walking gives him a better appetite for more samples.

Most demonstrators don't mind giving you one or two portions of their new product, but they don't like you to bring guests along.

One nervy guy gave a luncheon to his friends this way.

He would have taken them to dinner, but the department stores all clased at 5:30.

But he was a wonderful host and never missed a store that was giving anything away free.

One bird sued the department store because somebody copped his overcoat. The coat wasn't worth much, but the pockets were filled with samples.

He got even with them by never eating there again.

Those food demonstrators are funny; they look at you as though you had put three or four samples in your pocket and you look back at them just as though you hadn't.

One demonstrator asked a shopper if she'd like to try some pudding, and the woman said: "No, thank you; I haven't found the salada yet."

But she asked the clerk to put away a couple of portions, one for herself and one for a friend who was going to meet her at a quarter to four.

She finally found them and said it was the best entree she had ever had for nothing.

She told the manager of the booth that she'd eat there regularly if they had an orchestra.

She ate four helpings of their fish and then went to the store across the street and bought a dozen cans of another brand.

These food demonstrations are wonderful things. They prove that you can give away all that you can make.

MRS. PIKE DIES IN 107TH YEAR AT EXETER

Exeter, N. H., May 16.—Mrs. Mary R. Pike, widow of Rev. James Pike, who was a prominent Methodist clergyman, died at Newfields today at the age of 106 years 8 months and 4 days. She had been ill a year.

Mrs. Pike was born at Newfields September 11, 1813, and had lived in the vicinity practically all her life. She was the oldest member of the D. A. R. of New Hampshire, a real daughter of the Revolution, and was believed to have been the oldest person in New Hampshire, if not in New England. Her grandfather, Captain Luke Brodhead, served on Lafayette's staff in 1776.

She was the daughter of Rev. John Brodhead, founder of Methodism in New Hampshire. A brother, George H. Brodhead, was for a time president of the New York Stock Exchange.

CRITICS IN CONGRESS ASSAILED BY HAYNES

Washington, May 16.—Replying to Congressional critics, who are demanding Secretary of the Treasury Mellon remove him from office, Prohibition Commissioner Haynes today charged "mischievous and specious propaganda" was being used against him. He said he was not discouraged and declared he would continue aggressive administration of the prohibition law.

MAYOR ORDERS PARLEY OVER WOMEN JURORS

Mayor Curley today told Corporation Counsel Sullivan to confer with Chief Justice Rugg of the Supreme Court on the question of making adequate quarters for women jurors at the Suffolk County Courthouse.

NINE BLAZES ARE LAID TO FIREBUG

State police are investigating the ninth of a series of unexplained fires in West Roxbury, which have occurred during the past three weeks and which are believed due to the activities of a firebug.

The most recent fire to come to their attention is the one that started in the home of Mrs. Mary Fitzgerald at No. 15 Centre terrace.

The flames were discovered in an attic when a daughter, Mrs. Cecelia Bowen, smelled smoke and went up to investigate. The blaze was going so briskly that she was badly burned about the right arm and neck before she could retreat down the stairway.

The attic and entire second floor were ruined, with a damage estimated at $1,500.

Occupants of the house are unable to give any reason for the fire. Neither are fire officials who investigated the case.

The circumstances are in many ways similar to those which surround the other mysterious fires in the vicinity. The only explanation police can offer is that a pyromaniac is at work.

FOUR BIG STEAMSHIPS HERE FROM FAR PORTS

Four big steamships arrived in port today from distant points. They were the United American line freighter from the East Indies with Oriental stuffs; the Sprague line freighter Commack, from Buenos Aires and Santos with wool, hides, coffee, etc.; the Isthmian liner Robin Adair, from Pacific coast ports with merchandise, and the Manaqui, from Preston, Cuba, with sugar.

NO QUARREL WITH MISS DALTON, SAYS BROTHER

George Dalton of High street, Fall River, brother of Mrs. Helen Dalton Gordon, the girl accidentally killed by a Narrow Gauge train at Revere, denied that he ever quarreled with his sister Helen. "We were the best of friends and pals. She was a real sister. I grieve deeply at her loss," he said. "It is a terrible thing to say I quarreled with my sister before she went away. I did not. Nor did she run away, as was reported. I knew where she was all the time she was away. I was satisfied she was in good company.

"My sister was not looking for employment and had no need to work, as I stood ready at all times to furnish her with whatever funds she needed."

PART OF STOLEN GEMS SEIZED IN CHICAGO

Chicago, May 16.—Detectives today seized $6,000 worth of uncut diamonds in the jewelry shop of A. Quint & Company here. The gems were declared to be positively identified as part of $70,000 worth of jewels stolen from a Virginia planter in New York, May 5. Mr. Quint said he bought the jewels from A. M. Klein, a broker. Klein is being sought in Harrisburg, Pa.

RAISE FUNDS FOR CARTER MEMORIAL

The colored citizens of Boston today began raising a fund to establish a memorial bronze tablet for Sergeant William E. Carter, who served in the Massachusetts military forty years and who died in the front line trenches in France. He was the first colored man in Boston to have a public park dedicated in his honor. The unveiling of the tablet will be on Memorial Day at the William E. Carter playgrounds, Columbus avenue and Camden street, Roxbury.

The Great Farmer Knew

YOU have seen, at Mount Vernon, the little shops which our greatest Country Gentleman built and directed as part of the business of running a fine estate. By no means the least important of them — to George Washington — was his smoke house. For HE KNEW HOW TO EAT.

HE knew, that if you try to hurry the curing of ham, if you try to "force" it, you only force the flavor and tenderness out of it.

He would have relished Snyder-Cure Ham.

A little better pork to begin with.

A careful, mild, blend of sugar and salt, to develop the flavor and hold the tenderness.

A lot of patience, — and a lot more care.

And then, the Snyder-Cure Ham hangs high in the shadows of a smoke-room where little fires of sweet corn-cobs give up a cloud of fragrant smoke.

That's the last touch—it turns the ham a warm, savory brown — and makes you want more.

Every leading market makes it easy for you to have more, too. Be sure you see the familiar Snyder-Cure mark on the label in red, and stamped on the ham itself.

Sarah Splint says:

"Just enough cold water to cover it in the kettle; two sprigs of parsley, chopped, a thin-sliced onion, and two tablespoons of vinegar. Boil it slowly, until you can pierce it deep with a fork. Then serve it—and believe me!"

Business Men—
you must THINK your way now!

TIMES are different. We are doing business now on a falling market. The times call for new and infinitely better salesmanship. Those who understand—those who think their way through the problems that confront them today—will win. They will survive. They will prosper.

If you are one who desires more light, and desires to meet others seeking more light — others who are alert, like you, to the need of a better understanding—then you are invited, regardless of membership in the Association, to attend the great

Eighteenth Annual Convention
ASSOCIATED ADVERTISING CLUBS OF THE WORLD
Milwaukee, June 11 to 15, 1922

HERE is a five-day Forum — a school into which thousands of minds alert to the salesmanship needs of the times — will assemble for the discussion of the very problems that puzzle you every day.

Exhibits of foreign and domestic advertising—visualizing the methods by which others have made advertising more productive — will help point the way. And there will be opportunity to seek answers to your individual problems in sessions of the convention.

NAVAL OFFICER WEDDED TO MISS SIGOURNEY

Society circles of Boston and the North Shore, as well as a number of distinguished visitors from abroad, including the Princess Cantacuzene, Jr., attended the wedding today in Nahant of Miss May Sigourney, the youngest daughter of Mrs. Henry Sigourney of No. 77 Beacon street and Nahant, and Lieutenant-Commander Rochfort Yerburgh Loveband of the Royal British Navy, who arrived from Bermuda on H. M. S. Cambriana.

The ceremony was a quiet one in St. Thomas' Church, Nahant, with Rev. William B. Finigan of the Cathedral of the Holy Cross officiating. Miss Sigourney was given in marriage by her brother, Henry L. Sigourney. Her only attendants were her two sisters, Edith and Katharine, who acted as bridesmaids. The bridegroom had as best man, Lieutenant-Commander C. E. Hotham, also of the British navy.

The ceremony was witnessed by a few intimate friends and relatives of the bride.

Following the ceremony a reception was to be held at the Summer home of Mrs. Sigourney on Nahant road, at which a naval tinge was to be added, with the band on H. M. S. Constance and all the officers of the Constance, resplendent in their uniforms, present.

A large number of girl friends of the bride, who is one of the most popular girls in the younger social set, and members of the Vincent Club and the Sewing Circle, of 1916, 1917 and of the Chilton Club, attended.

Lieutenant Commander Loveband is the youngest son of the Rev. Walter Loveband and Mrs. Loveband, of Crawley, Sussex, England. He is attached to H. M. S. Cambrian, which is now in Bermuda. The engagement was announced in March of this year and came as a surprise to the many friends of the bride.

Miss Sigourney is a sister to Miss Edith Sigourney, the noted tennis player. Her brothers are Henry D. Sigourney, Harvard, 1907, and David B. Sigourney, Harvard, 1907.

After a short wedding tour Lieutenant-Commander Loveband will rejoin his ship at Bermuda, which will sail on May 31, with his bride seeing him off. Later they will make their home in England.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

North Shore Welcomes Phillipses Return to Colony

By BETTY ALDEN.

MRS. WILLIAM PHILLIPS is receiving greetings of welcome from all sides following her arrival at the North Shore last week. This is only natural, as the Phillipses have been missed from these shores ever since Mr. Phillips' appointment as American Minister to the Netherlands took the family to The Hague. Now that Mr. Phillips has been nominated by President Harding to be Under Secretary of State, the family will once more make their home in America.

Mrs. Phillips, who arrived recently in New York on board the Rotterdam, has brought the children to "Highover," the Summer estate at North Beverly, where her husband, who is now in Washington, will join his family whenever his duties permit.

The recent appointment of Mr. Phillips as Under Secretary of State was of considerable interest among Boston society folk, due to prominent family connections and many club holdings of Mr. Phillips here. His mother is Mrs. John C. Phillips of Commonwealth avenue, and the brothers Dr. John C. and George W. Phillips. His sisters are Mrs. Andrew J. Peters and Mrs. Reynal Bolling, now living in Greenwich, Ct.

In Boston he is a member of the Somerset, Tennis and Racquet, Myopia and Tavern clubs. His New York clubs include the Union, while in Washington his name is inscribed upon the scroll of the Metropolitan, Chevy Chase and Riding clubs. He is a Harvard man, class of 1900. Mrs. Phillips, prior to her marriage, was Miss Caroline Drayton, daughter of Coleman Drayton of New York. Her late mother was an Astor.

Dr. and Mrs. John C. Phillips (Eleanor Hyde) of Mt. Vernon street have also come to their Summer home at Wenham, where their estate is known as "Windyknob." During the past Winter they were the guests of Dr. Phillips' brother and sister-in-law at the American legation at The Hague. With the senior Mrs. John Phillips also at the shore, the family circle is quite a full one. Mrs. Phillips' estate is in Beverly Farms and is called "Moraine Farm."

MRS. ROBERT FARLEY CLARK of No. 29 Chestnut street will speak tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the Hotel Vendome on "Peru and the Peruvians." Mrs. Clark is one of the most earnest workers among the philanthropic set, and the beautiwully appointed drawing room of her Chestnut street residence has been opened on several occasions for charity functions. Mrs. Clark has only recently returned from an interesting trip to South America, and during her travels there she obtained a valuable collection of stereopticon slides.

The proceeds of tomorrow's talk will go towards the Simmons College endowment fund. Illustrations showing the scenery, customs and architecture of the country will be shown. Tickets may be had from Mesdames Henry Le Faveur and John H. Rice, as well as the Misses Rose Dexter, Madeleine Lawrence, Marguerite C. Harrington and Mary E. Williams.

Apropos of entertainments to swell college endowment funds, the Misses Susan Cabot Lyman, Elizabeth Putnam and Katherine Searle were on hand as sales ladies for the sale and exhibition of Sandwich glass held yesterday at the Radcliffe Shop on Boylston street. A similar sale had been held previously at the Radcliffe Shop in Cambridge, which proved such a success that it was decided to hold one in the Boylston street shop.

MRS. JOHN C. PHILLIPS

Mrs. John C. Phillips (Eleanor Hyde) of Mt. Vernon street is of the Boston contingent already at the North Shore for the season. Mrs. Phillips is the sister-in-law of William Phillips, recently nominated as Under Secretary of State.

PRACTICALLY every steamer making the trip "across the pond" does so these days with "capacity houses" and few indeed, or not at all are the vacant staterooms.

Of the Bostonians sailing last week were Mrs. Robert Jordan and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stearns, who were passengers aboard the White Star liner Olympic. Quite a Boston contingent sailed from these shores aboard the Holland American liner Rotterdam, which carried no less than 1,620 passengers. In this group were Mrs. Charles S. Minot of Marlboro street, Miss Annie Bell Coolidge, Mrs. Jessie P. Lyman and Lawrence Doty.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd B. Sanderson, Jr., (Rosanna Fiske) who were married at Christ Church, Cambridge, on April 29, will sail for Europe the last of the month to spend the Summer abroad. At present the young couple are honeymooning in Florida. Mrs. Sanderson, Jr., is the daughter of the Charles H. Fiskes of Mt. Vernon street.

Random Notes of Society Folk in Town and Country

MR. AND MRS. LAWRENCE FRENCH PERCIVAL of Commonwealth avenue have been stopping for a few days at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in New York. Also at the Rit-Carlton was Mrs. Rodman Paul Snelling, who has been sojourning for some time with her husband and her daughter, Miss Ella Snelling, at Hot Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. McCagg of New York are all ready for the season at their Newport home on Gibbs avenue. On June 27 their son, Louis McCagg, Jr., will marry Miss Katherine Winslow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Winslow of Boston. Young McCagg will receive his degree from Harvard just a few days before his marriage.

Dr. and Mrs. William Jason Mixter have concluded their stay at Hot Springs and are returning to Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Alden Thorndike, who are of the Hub contingent staying on at this resort, were recently of those driving through Dunn's Gap.

Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Bristow Draper of Boston sail today on the Mauretania, bound for Liverpool. The Bristows, whose Winter residence is on Beacon street, have a large estate in Hopedale, known as "The Crossways," where they usually spend a goodly portion of the year.

A change in the wedding plans of Miss Lilian Aldrich and John Gordon Winchester has been announced. The ceremony, which was to take plase at the country home of the bride's mother in Dublin, N. H., will instead be solemnized at Trinity Church. The date is June 3.

HAROLD LLOYD TO WED HIS STAR

Los Angeles, Cal., May 16.—Gentle spring has the same effect among the movie stars as among boilermakers, stevedores, reporters and other honest toilers. They say the season has been working on Harold Lloyd, he of the horn-rimmed spectacles, and his leading lady, Mildred Davis. Friends say they will be married in the near future.

Harold Lloyd.

The engagement of the popular couple has been suspected since Mildred appeared wearing a large solitaire on her engagement finger. She admitted that it had been placed there by Lloyd.

RUSSIA ASKS TIME FOR THE HAGUE REPLY

By International News Service.

Genoa, May 16.—After apparently accepting in principle the allied proposal for a meeting at The Hague to study the Russian problem by taking testimony from a commission of Russian experts, George Tchitcherin, head of the Russian delegation, today suddenly asked the political sub-commission of the international economic conference for twenty-four hours in which to make final reply. The request was granted.

2 NEW JERSEY FIRES CAUSE $2,250,000 LOSS

New York, May 16.—Two New Jersey fires today caused a combined loss of $2,250,000. At Perth Amboy the white lead department of the United Lead Company's plant was destroyed by flames with an estimated damage of $1,500,000.

The blaze, which for a time threatened to spread to the factory of the U. S. Cartridge Company 150 feet distant, was brought under control after a six-hour fight by the Perth Amboy fire department, aided by scores of volunteers.

At Bayonne ten tanks of petroleum had been destroyed by the fire now said to be under control which started in the Tidewater Oil Company's yards when a flash of lightning struck a tank of oil.

POWERS GLUM AT REBUFF BY AMERICA

Genoa, May 16 (By the Associated Press).—Foreign Minister Schanzer of Italy, on learning from the Associated Press the decision of the American Government not to join the proposed Commission on Russian Affairs at The Hague, expressed great surprise, especially at the rapidity with which a decision was taken which may have great influence on further discussions at Genoa.

London, May 16 (By International News Service).—The refusal of the United States to take part in the meeting at The Hague for the appointment of a commission to study the Russian problem has turned Premier Lloyd George to pessimism, according to advices from Genoa.

5 LIVES LOST IN 500 FOREST FIRES HERE

Five lives were lost, seventy buildings burned and more than 36,000 acres of forest land destroyed by the forest fires which have swept the State. The damage caused by 500 fires, including some of the worst, is yet to be computed.

The summary was compiled today by State Commissioner of Conservation William A. L. Bazeley.

Mr. Bazeley reported on 2,508 fires this Spring, of which 914 were on the railroad rights-of-way and 1,594 in forests. They burned over 36,380 acres, causing a loss of $190,275 and a cost of $42,592 to put them out.

In that group, 495 were caused by burning brush, 368 by smokers, 1[illegible] by children and 50 were incendiary.

"There is no nation in the world that burns up its country like Americans," said Mr. Bazeley. "In twenty-five years, if this keeps on, the forests will have been destroyed."

TWO ARE FINED ON LIQUOR CHARGES

Frank Scott, charged with keeping and exposing liquor at his home in the North End, was found guilty by Judge Murray in Municipal Court today and fined $50. William Rowan, Tremont street, South End, charged with a like offence, was fined $200 when Judge Murray learned that this was the third time in as many weeks that such an offence had been charged against the prisoner. Rowan appealed.

USED FLATIRON AND RAZOR TO KILL WOMAN

that tantalizing tangy flavor

WHY do the great chefs serve green olives with dinner? Because they put a keen edge on appetites and make everything taste better. They are recognized as the greatest of appetizers.

The flavor of green olives is so tantalizingly good that to think about it makes you hungry. You get a longing to taste the salty tang—to bite into the firm, plump, meaty fruit.

Green olives are good for you, too! The olive oil in them is healthful—wholesome.

Eat green olives by themselves. Or try a chopped olive sandwich with mayonnaise—or eat them in a salad—or as a garnish. They're great! Keep them on your table. Green olives are an addition to any meal. Buy a bottle or two today.

"FOLLIES" ARE BACK AT THE GAYETY

The premier burlesque attraction of the year, "Follies of the Day," returned to the Gayety Theatre yesterday to fill a Summer engagement and the company received ovations from capacity audiences at both matinee and evening performances.

The audiences were hugely entertained with the inimitable comedy of Tommy "Boo" Snyder, the man who never speaks. "Bozo" relies wholly upon his mastery of the art of pantomime for interpretation of his role. Gertrude Hayes, Jr., billed as a dancing demon, justifies the appellation.

Julie De Cameron, prima donna, pleased with her beautiful singing. The company was made up of many other excellent entertainers, comedians and comediennes, among them Johnny Webber, Sam Green, Mae Dix, Matty White, Morton Beck, John B. Williams, Harry Watson, Ed Critchley, Bob Tolliver.

The Parisien Poseurs presented some striking stage pictures and the Four Dancing Girlies presented a novel dance act, imported from London. The thirty choristers were a revelation of feminine beauty.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—Enchanting gracefulness and bewitching melody featured the superb dancing and musical act presented by Maryon Vadie and Ota Gygi as the headline vaudeville act at Gordon's Olympia Theatre. Clara Morton was also seen in a "Solo Songalogue." Featuring the photoplay program was "Reported Missing," with Owen Moore in the star role.

SOMERVILLE PLAYERS—William Anthony Maguire's success, "The Divorce Question," was given by the Somerville Players at their Davis Square playhouse yesterday. Enid Markey, Arthur Howard, Francesca Rotoli and Frank Camp showed especially fine ability.

TREMONT TEMPLE—Great was the enthusiasm shown yesterday at Tremont Temple at the return engagement of William Fox's picture, "Over the Hill." The principal role is that of Ma Benton, played by Mary Carr, who has made of it a masterpiece of dramatic art.

"MISS LULU BETT" SCORES AT ST. JAMES

"Miss Lulu Bett," Zona Gale's 1,000 prize play of last year, was seen for the first time in Boston at the St. James Theatre when the Boston Stock Company gave a very creditable performance.

The story tells of an unmarried girl who slaves for her married sister in order to provide a living for herself and her mother. Finally she gets her chance and makes good.

Ann Mason got her chance in this play and gave the best performance that she has given since joining the ranks of the Boston Stock Company. Walter Gilbert was cast opposite her in the role of Ninian Deacon, her unfaithful sweetheart.

Others who added materially to the evening's entertainment were Florence Roberts, Ralph Remley, Mark Kent, Aubrey Bosworth, Lucille Adams, Viola Roach, Marion Goad and Frank Charlton.

"Miss Lulu Bett was declared the best American play of the year. As presented at the St. James it is well worth seeing.

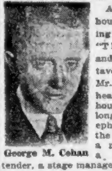
GEORGE COHAN THINKS FAST, TALKSFASTER

Lengthen your stride, shake a leg, step on the gas—meet George M. Cohan.



George M. Cohan

After a three-hour nerve-racking rehearsal of "The Tavern," and a Volstead tavern at that, Mr. Cohan was headed for a two-hour siege of long-distance telephoning when the reporter took a nose-dive past a bulky door tender, a stage manager, a valet and a few more lines of defence and downed the actor-author-manager on the door jam with only a keyhole to go.

"An interview," gasped the scribe.

"Shoot," said the best known man on Broadway.

"What do you think of the world?"

"Some world."

"Prohibition?"

"Coffee's my limit."

"Flappers?"

"God love 'em."

"Bobbed hair?"

"Sensible."

LIKES NEW SONGS BEST.

"Are the new songs as good as the old?"

"Better. Got more pep to 'em."

"How do you write a play?"

"Just write it."

"Do you ever write the last act first?"

"Sometimes."

"Frank Tinney says you wrote 'Over There' at the Friars' Club one afternoon while sittting at a table with him?"

"Frank has a good memory."

"Going to give us any more plays like 'Seven Keys of Baldpate'?"

"Wish I could."

"What do you think of Dempsey?"

"Some boy."

"Morvich?"

"Some horse."

"How do the Braves stand up?"

"Ah, you know my weakness. Please. I'd talk baseball all day and I haven't a minute."

"Going to buy a ball team?"

"Some day."

The reporter gasped for breath. But George was gone.

EVELYN NESBIT MAY WED HUNGARIAN BARON

Atlantic City, N. J., May 16.—Evelyn Nesbit admitted today that she was considering a proposal of marriage, although she said she could not marry because she was at present legally the wife of Jack Clifford, the dancer. However, she said that she had told her admirer to patiently wait as there were hopes.

Sandor De Windt, a Hungarian baron, is the man she says who has sought her as a wife.

NEW YORK TO HONOR COUNTESS MARKIEVICZ

New York, May 16.—New York's reception to the Countess Markievicz will take place at Madison Square Garden next Sunday evening. Prominent national, State and city officials as well as national speakers and operatic singers will make the reception a very notable one.

Patriotic American societies and labor unions will take part in the demonstration. Several bands will furnish music. John W. Goff will preside.

COHAN GIVEN OVATION AT TREMONT

George M. Cohan, whom Boston regards as her son-in-law, if not her son, his wife having been a Boston girl, was given an enthusiastic reception at the Tremont Theatre last night when he made his first stage appearance here in years as the vagabond in "The Tavern."

The Broadway comedian. whose patriotic concoctions and nimble feet first endeared him to the American public years ago, and who has since remained close to their hearts with his able play writing, acting and lilting compositions, is always sure of a warm welcome in Boston.

The applause last night was so prolonged George M., as he is known to intimates, had to raise his hand and stay it before the performance could proceed.

A review of "The Tavern" will appear in Wednesday's Boston American.

WALDRON'S CASINO—The burlesque portion of the bill at Waldron's Casino is entitled "The Jolly Grass Widow."

Droll Frank Finney and Phil Ott led the male contingent of fun makers. Kitty Glasco, prima donna, pleased with several excellent vocal numbers. Others who shone in the cast were Tom Senna, Nettie Nelson, Bonnie Boyd, Helen Weber, May Standish and the Alpine Trio. Featuring the photo play program was "The Valley of Doubt." A bill of vaudeville completed the bill.

LOEW'S ORPHEUM—At Loew's Orpheum Theatre yesterday the photoplay feature was Gladys Walton in "Second Hand Rose," a picture adapted from the popular song of the same name. The vaudeville was headed by the Lorraine Sisters, in artistic dances. On Thursday the feature photoplay will be "Arabian Love," with John Gilbert and also new vaudeville.

SCOLLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA—The Yip-Yip-Yap Hankers presented a hilarious comedy playlet, "A Day in Camp," as the headline novelty on the vaudeville bill at Gordon's Scollay Square Olympia Theatre. Several other good acts were included in the bill. Dorothy Dalton was the star of the headline photoplay, "The Crimson Challenge." An added feature was Harold Lloyd in his greatest comedy, "A Sailor Made Man."

GORDON'S STRAND—"Pay Day," the latest Charles Chaplin picture, opened a run yesterday at Gordon's Strand. Other attractions include Paramount's latest sensation "The Cradle," featuring Ethel Clayton. William Collier, Jr., was seen in Robert W. Chambers' famous story, "Cardigan."

GORDON'S CENTRAL SQ.—Betty Compson, in "The Green Temptation," is the feature of the program at Gordon's Central Square Theatre, Cambridge. Johnny Hines, in "Burn 'Em Up Barnes," and an Al St. John comedy, "Fool Days," are also shown.

BOWDOIN SQ. THEATRE—May Yohe, formerly Lady Francis Hope, and at one time one of the biggest musical comedy favorites on the stage, made her personal appearance yesterday at the Bowdoin Square Theatre in the comedy sketch, "In Silk Attire."

'WHIRL' STILL FILLING THE MAJESTIC

"The Whirl of New York," the New York Winter Garden revue, continues to be the feature at the Majestic Theatre this week. There are some very good specialties in the vaudeville first part. Kira, in new dancing sensations, shines as one of the leading stars, and Roy Cummings also makes a hit.

Bard and Pearl went over big with their chatter act. The Purcella Brothers demonstrated some new steps in their eccentric dancing specialty. Pierre de Reeder, pianist, and Nancy Gibbs, vocalist, were well received.

Another rare treat was given by Florence Schubert and her chorus of colleens. The "Saturday Evening Postman," a skit by Keno and Green, went over favorably. New pictures completed the bill.

Plays That Remain

PARK THEATRE—"Smilin' Through," with Norma Talmadge in the leading dual roles, began the third week of its run at the Park Theatre. Miss Talmadge does the best of her career in the difficult dual role.

COLONIAL THEATRE—"Sally," at the Colonial Theatre, is beginning its fourth week. Marilyn Miller, Leon Errol and Walter Catlett head the cast.

WILBUR THEATRE—"The Last Waltz," with Eleanor Painter in the featured role, is drawing well at the Wilbur Theatre. This is another Strauss operetta.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—"Ladies' Night," the Avery Hopwood-Wilson Collison farce that is holding forth at the Plymouth Theatre, started another week of unabated audiences last night. This entertaining piece is appealing to those who are looking for laughs.

SELWYN THEATRE—The fifth week of William Courtney's crook play, "Smooth as Silk," began last night at the Selwyn Theatre. Charlotte Walker admirably supported Mr. Courtney.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS AND COMMENT

By FRIEDA DAVIS

FOR GENUINE entertainment of the lightest order see "The Beauty Shop," headlining the [illegible] at the Modern and Beacon Theatres this week. This piece, once in musical comedy form, by Channing Pollock and Rennold Wolf, was one of Raymond Hitchcock's biggest successes a few years ago. It remains one of his best, even under the disadvantage of silence. Considering that it was intended as the basis for a musical attraction, it is remarkably well-suited to the screen.

Raymond Hitchcock

At times the comedy reaches—at many times, I might add—the degree of absurdity. But it is highly amusing throughout.

Many of the original lines have been used as subtitles and bring forth the usual laughs. One can fairly hear "Hitchy" speaking them.

BY TWO NOTED WRITERS

The production, made by Cosmopolitan, is an extravagant one. The entire cast of players has been recruited from the stars of Broadway. The story is from the pen of two of our foremost playwrights, Channing Pollock and the late Rennold Wolf. The settings have been designed by Lee Simonson, who was responsible for the unusual and picturesque scenes in "Liliom," which was seen here at the Wilbur Theatre this season. It has been extremely well put on.

The players could not have been improved upon. Raymond Hitchcock, of course, fits the role of Dr. Arbutus Budd from start to finish. Louise Fazenda, one of the shining lights of the Sennett forces, is at her funniest as the daughter of the inn-keeper of Bolognia. Her coy closeups are among the best bits of comedy playing the screen has seen in months.

As for the rest of the cast, it includes the Franklin twins, who are given opportunities for dancing, opportunities of which they make the most and acceptably. They are seen as Coca and Cola. James J. Corbett and Billy Van are prominent members of the community of Bolognia, as well as Montague Love. Diana Allen has an unimportant part, while Laurance Wheat does well as an enterprising young lawyer.

"FASCINATION"

MAE MURRAY'S second independent venture, made under the banner of Tiffany Productions is here and is seen this week at Loew's State. It is "Fascination," a story that takes in Fifth avenue, New York, and La Plaza del Toros, Spain. In this story Miss Murray has chosen a sure-fire box office attraction and she should make a great deal of money out of it. As a story, however, it amounts to very little.

Miss Mae Murray—or possibly it's her director, Robert Leonard—is an artist in many ways. She costumes her pictures with remarkable taste. She makes use of unusually effective close-ups and lighting effects. "Fascination" abounds in all three of these qualities.

Mae Murray.

As a spoiled debutante she out-flaps our best flappers. Her impulses, erratic and picturesque always, are sheer impetuosity. Many players give a studied series of flapperish doings. Later the star is called upon for more emotional playing. While she does very well, she is in no way remarkable. She is not of the emotional calibre.

A PATCHY STORY.

The story is patchy. There is little consecutive action; you wander along from one episode of impetuous action to another and eventually find that something exciting is about to happen. For a moment it even borders on murder, but the proper twist comes at the proper moment and it all ends happily. In spite of its faults it is good entertainment.

Helen Ware, well known for her stage work, has a prominent role in the picture and is a splendid foil for Miss Murray. Unfortunately she shows the star's limitations in emotional playing. That happens to be Miss Ware's strong point.

FORMER MOVIE STARS HEAD KEITH'S BILL

Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, once idols of the cinema world, but now stars of the vaudeville stage, appeared in the headline act at Keith's Theatre yesterday, and once again proved their popularity by the tremendous ovation accorded them at both afternoon and evening performances.

The former co-stars of picture features were seen in "The Poor Rich Man," a dramatic satire of poverty and riches, and acquitted themselves admirably in their respective roles.

Harry Jolson, a brother of Al Jolson, had the audience in an uproar by his comic songs, funny antics and ever ready wit. Harry, like Al, is a blackface comedian of no mean ability.

Venita Gould gave her impressions of some well-known stars of the stage and was roundly applauded for her clever imitations.

Others on the bill are: Jim McWilliams, eccentric comedian, with new hits in his sketch "The Pianist"; Francis X. Donegan and Amelia Allen, in "Playmates"; Harry J. Conley, with Naomi Ray, Harry and Grace Ellsworth and The Rectors.

The usual fine program of pictures are given before and after the vaudeville acts.

LOEW'S STATE

At the State Theatre Mae Murray was seen in "Fascination," which concerns the adventures of a young Spanish-American girl. Another picture of almost equal interest was Agnes Ayres in "The Ordeal," by W. Somerset Maugham.

MODERN AND BEACON—The bill at the Modern and Beacon Theatres included the comedy, "The Beauty Shop," adapted from the musical play of similar title in which Raymond Hitchcock starred. "Queen o' the Turf" is the title of the companion picture.

HOWARD ATHENAEUM—At the Howard Athenaeum the "Baby Dolls" and the "Bachelor's Babies" divided honors. Harry (Hello Jake) Fields, Fred Binder, Eddie Welch, Margaret Hastings, Hallie Dean and other favorites are seen.

WOMAN BURNED IN TURPENTINE EXPLOSION

Mrs. Annie Rickard, fifty years old, was burned at her home at No. 10 Edge Hill street, Roxbury, today when a bottle of turpentine exploded when fumes ignited from a gas iron.

Mrs. Rickard arose early to press a pair of trousers for her husband, Benjamin. She placed the gas iron too near the turpentine and the explosion followed.

Neck Broken as Keg of Grain Alcohol Blows Up

Norfolk, Va., May 16.—When a keg of grain alcohol, on which he was sitting while reading a newspaper in a Portsmouth drug store, exploded and hit the ceiling, James Parker, negro, was instantly killed.

He was blown to the ceiling. Doctors said his neck was broken.

The keg was undamaged except that the bottom side was blown out.

ELOPER IS HELD ON ABDUCTION CHARGE

Alma Leverone, sixteen years old, Medford High School graduate, is in tears at the home of her uncle in Jersey City, N. J., while her twenty-year-old sweetheart, Edward Austin, with whom she eloped, is being held by detectives on a charge of abduction.

The girl will be brought back to her home and Austin is expected to be returned to Medford by the police.

The romance of the young couple had its inception last year when both were graduated from high school.

Alma lives with her parents and two other children at No. 23 Yale street, Medford. Austin lives with his father and mother at No. 34 Ware street, West Somerville.

They eloped to New York last week and, running short of funds, Austin then admitted that they visited a relative of the girl in West New York, a suburb of Jersey City. The relative, Frank Leverone, brother of Miss Leverone's father, became suspicious, wired to her father and telephoned the police. were not married though they intended to be. He said that he did not have enough money for a license and minister and that her parents opposed the match. He also said that they owed a hotel bill of $75 in New York, incurred during their pre-honeymoon trip.

Austin may also be arraigned on a charge of violating the Mann act.

Radio Question Box

F. S., Boston, Mass.—Is it possible for a wire walker to walk on aerial wire and hold the leading wire in his hand and receive signals?

Yes, it can be done but it is not practical.

R. W. B. Gould, Presque Isle, Me.—What power is Medford using?

We understand 200 Watts.

P. G. Long, Marysville, N. B.—We suggest that you watch the advertising columns of this paper for your information.

S. H. Lanzini, Medford.—Is it all right to use a pipe mast for my aerial?

Yes if properly insulated.

W. H. Sullivan, Lubec, Me.—We suggest that you watch the advertising columns of this paper for your information. We are looking up your other inquiry regarding call book.

W. A. Harriman, Lubec, Me.—Can antenna be constructed the same as telephone line, using same cross-arms and insulators instead of using suspension construction?

Yes, providing wires on telephone poles are not grounded and not in use. One wire can be used very nicely.

RADIO RANGES ARE WIDER AT NIGHT

By The Eastern Radio Institute

By "normal range" of a radio telegraph or telephone transmitter is generally meant its dependable daylight range under favorable conditions, (local lightning storms excepted. Under favorable conditions (atmospheric) signals carry considerably further. At night, ranges of many times the normal daylight range are often attained.

An explanation of this phenomenon appears to be the ionization of the air, which is rendered less conductive by the sunlight, thus conducting the waves to earth instead of permitting their propagation.

At night-time it sometimes occurs that signals from distant stations "swing" badly, or vary in intensity from one moment to the next. They may gradually become weaker, and even fade out entirely and then reappear with varying intensity.

This phenomenon is due to certain conditions of the atmosphere. Stations within reliable daylight range are seldom or never observed to fade appreciably. If signals from various stations heard appear to fade or swing simultaneously, the receiving set should be suspected. In this case the cause is frequently an exhausted filament or plate battery.

The condition of the "A" (filament) battery is indicated by the filament brilliancy attainable or with a storage battery hydrometer, while the "B" (plate) battery units are tested by means of a volt meter, and should be replaced if the voltage per unit does not come within one volt of the normal value. An irregular hissing or frying noise is frequently another indication of an exhausted "B" battery.

The nineteenth regulation of the act of Congress to regulate radio communication, approved August 13, 1912, provides a heavy penalty for divulging the contents of any message transmitted or received by a radio station, except to the persons to whom the message is directed, or to their authorized agents, or to another station employed to forward the message to its destination.

Broadcasted messages, in telegrahy denoted by the prefix QST, are addressed to all stations and, therefore, are common property. These may be passed on as the receiving station desires, unless a special restriction is added to the broadcasting prefix by the transmitting station, such as, for example: "QST to all ships subscribing to news service," or a similar restriction.

ADAMS IS NEW HEAD OF S. A. R.

Springfield, May 16.—Major Washington I. L. Adams of New Jersey was today elected president of the national society of Sons of the American Revolution, the annual congress of which is in session at the Hotel Kimball.

Major Adams was nominated by Judge Adrian H. Lynn of New Jersey. He succeeds Judge Wallace McCamant of Portland.

Resolutions were adopted calling on Congress to sustain the National Defence Act of 1920; to concur with President Harding and secretaries of the army any navy in the size of America's army and navy, and urging the erection in Washington of an archives building in which to store national records, funds to be voted by Congress. The initiation fee in the S. A. R. was increased from 50 cents to $5.

STOKES WORTH $10,000,000, SAYS WIFE

New York, May 16.—W. E. D. Stokes, millionaire hotel and real estate operator, is possessed of an estate valued conservatively at $10,000,000, according to a statement made by Attorney Samuel Untermyer.

Untermyer was before Supreme Court Justice Finch making application for a yearly alimony of $75,000 for his client, Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, estranged wife of the millionaire. Mrs. Stokes is asking for the undivided custody of the couple's two children and the appointment of a special referee and accountant to discover allegedly concealed assets of the husband.

According to Untermyer, Stokes' equity in the Ansonia Hotel in this city is valued at $4,000,000 after deducting some mortgages which affect the property. Other realty holdings in the city add another million dollars to the estate, Untermyer said, while the value of the securities and bonds held by Stokes will total another $5,000,000.

Stokes also owns, according to Untermyer, forty-nine other parcels of New York real estate, as well as a large stock farm in Kentucky.

U. S. Chamber Has Declared for the "Open Shop"

Washington, May 16.—The United States Chamber of Commerce threw down the gauntlet today to organized labor, announcing that the $2,500,000 home of the Chamber, now under construction here, would be built on the "open shop" plan.

The announcement is tantamount to an open defiance of organized labor and came without warning to union leaders who have tried to get the Chamber to employ union labor and thus secure an indorsement of union labor.

ASKS WAITER TO HAVE SOMEONE SHOOT HIM

New York, May 16.—A man in blue overalls, jumpers and a cap entered the Firefly Tavern on West Forty-seventh street and when the waiter came, pointed out the dishes he wanted. He ate a hearty meal and when the waiter brought the check, the stranger wrote on a piece of paper: "I have no money. Please have somebody shoot me." He was set to Bellevue Hospital for observation.

WIFE IN FINAL PLEA FOR LIFE OF SLAYER

New York, May 16.—Julius Rosenwasser must pay the death penalty this week. He probably will be executed on Thursday night.

Judge Talley, who tried Rosenwasser last June, was called back from his vacation to hear argument on a motion for new trial based on "newly-discovered evidence." Judge Talley denied the application.

Ex-Judge Snitken, counsel for Rosenwasser, made the argument for the new trial before Judge Talley on an order signed by Judge McIntyre on Sunday, granting permission to make such a motion.

It was argued that since Rosenwasser's conviction last June for slaying a man who was about to return to his homeland in Poland with his life savings of $2,000, it had been discovered that Rosenwasser was a "Moron a person of a mentality of a ten-year-old child," and that his family history on both the maternal and paternal sides had disclosed many cases of insanity.

As a last resort Mrs. Sadie Rosenwasser and her eighteen-month-old child were to go to Albany today with a petition signed by eleven surviving members of the jury which convicted her husband, and plead with the Governor to take into consideration the present attitude of the jurymen.

GIVE US REAL SHORTCAKE

This is the season for strawberry shortcake — real shortcake, that is. There is only one way to make this delectable food, and that is the old-fashioned way. All of the old-timers know what that way is. There must be a genuine "short" cake made of the dough that was previously known to be biscuit dough. Any other foundation is all wrong and of no avail. And it must be warm, buttered and dripping with juice.

This thought comes to us as we read in the street cars a recipe for so-called strawberry shortcake. They tell us that we may have some kind of sponge cake for the article—and then and there we rebel. There is no such thing as strawberry shortcake unless the cake part of it is really "short." To try to make us believe that a real shortcake can be concocted of a kind of cake filling is to try to induce us to believe that a real clam chowder can be made of tomatoes and a few chopped-up bivalves. The Cape Codder justly scorns that sort of stuff.

New Englanders rejoice in strawberry shortcake. But they denounce and condemn any imitation of the genuine article. And they are right in so doing.

Oh—dear Editor—
History tells you—in days of yore—when something happened in NEW YORK TOWNE—it took two days to get the news

Without the Telegraph and your local news, with much running and scurrying about, took hours to collect

Without the Telephone and wonder of wonders, how could hundreds of thousands every night "listen in"

Without the Radio and how could you, against the hand-press of olden days, print 415,611 POSTS every morning

Without the Octuple Press
so why not,
KIND POST, allow the modernization of the Short-Cake, and judge not by tradition, but taste the delectable Sponge-Cake, melting in the mouth, giving a touch of Paradise to the epicure, rather than the "Short" Short-Cake, incomparably short with all its shortcomings, forming a glutinous mass, and ofttimes giving hours of pains and aches—how can you, dear Post, how can you!—and after all—PROGRESS gave us the marvels of science that make life worth while, so why not add another milestone to American fame—for after all what would Strawberry Short-Cake be

MORE OPINIONS ON DAYLIGHT SAVING

Editor Boston American:—

Daylight saving is the greatest blessing that a poor workingman can have. If he has a garden he can work it in daylight; or take his wife and children to the country or a beach. What could be better? We will be in darkness long enough.

Martin T. Downey,
142 Campbell Ave., Revere.

Editor Boston American:—

I oppose daylight saving because putting the clock ahead an hour turns the whole world bottom-side up. Haven't you noticed it?

W. D. Arams, Allston.

Editor Boston American:—

Up to the time the contest began in the columns of the American the question of daylight saving held no interest for me, but I am now a most rabid partisan in favor of the new schedule, my prejudice being due entirely to the arguments put forward by the other side.

This controversy, judged by its merits alone, must inevitably go by default to the Pros for want of any valid arguments on the part of the Cons.

"Cantabrigian."
Cambridge.

OPPOSE THE LAW.

Editor Boston American:—

The question of Daylight Saving never should be allowed. The lunatics fooling with "Standard Time" should be housed with those others in the place where they belong. Let "Standard Time" stand as it ought to and put the "Nuts" to work.

"Haverhill."

Editor Boston American:—

"We are opposed to Daylight Saving because it works a hardship on workers. We will all be glad when Standard Time comes into its own again.

George, Elizabeth, Ruth, Mabel, Lillian, Gladys and Milton Horr.
19½ Congress St., Providence.

CALLS IT IDIOTIC.

Editor Boston American:—

Nature has been on the job for centuries, has attended to the revolution of this earth and has determined the natural length of day and night; and now comes puny "Dam Phule" man, throws out his chest and by an idiotic act of our legislature says to the Almighty that he is not running this universe to suit them; and, consequently, they disturb the order of time by trying to steal something that does not enrich or benefit anybody, nor make the days one whit longer or shorter.

Joseph A. Stafford, 51 Trowbridge St., Arlington.

Editor Boston American:—

I can't see any sense in so many people making such a fuss about getting up earlier in the morning. Don't they retire an hour earlier in the evening and doesn't it work out practically the same? It may make it a little harder for the farmers, but the majority of them work from daylight until dark anyway, so how can it make so much difference to them?

One of the farmer's greatest arguments is, that he cannot make hay so early in the afternoon. Well, he is not making hay all summer, only for a comparatively short time. It seems as though some arrangement could be made whereby the farmer's workmen could work a little different hours during haying time.

C. H. M., Natick.

ALRIGHT FOR GOLFERS.

Editor Boston American:—

Some people want daylight saving so they can play golf and go auto riding. Well, what of it? Just because you don't want them to have a long evening, is it any reason why a workingman should not have a long evening?

It is not necessary to go to bed in the daylight to get sufficent sleep, is it? The majority don't go to bed until 10 o'clock time and you could go to bed at 10 o'clock daylight saving time and get the same amount of sleep as before.

All my neighbors and fellow workmen that I have been talking to recently are very much in favor of it.

[illegible] Ivers, Roxbury.

HARD ON FARMER.

Editor Boston American:—

Why Daylight Saving? Since the world began the God-given sun governed time. As a war measure we all particularly supported daylight saving, but when peace was declared farmers who were affected more than any other class expected a return to standard time and a relief from the hardships they suffer under daylight saving.

But a certain class of pleasure seekers who controlled the situation have forced the farmers to conform to a measure that works a hardship. Many, I know, must labor 16 hours a day under the present law. Those who supply milk and early vegetables must arise at 4 a.m., (3 a.m. true time) and labor until 9 at night.

While mechanics are demanding 8 hours per days for five days a week the farmer's 8 hours' work is finished at noon and still he works another eight hours up to 9 p.m., six days a week and six hours on the seventh day.

He has no time for golf, auto rides, baseball or tennis. It is those who enjoy these pleasures and work the least who demand daylight saving.

Charles [illegible] Dow,
Secretary, Garden City Grange, Newton.

BURKE-KEYES FEUD REFLECTED IN NEW LAW

An echo of the feud between Representative Frank J. What Lura Liquid Shampoo Will Do for Your Hair

The rediscovered beauty secret of Ancient Egypt

EXPERT hair-dressers know that a henna properly used in a shampoo gives life and youthful gloss and beauty to dull, dry or graying hair.

LURA LIQUID SHAMPOO is made from a formula that is the result of long research. It is the Egyptian hair tonic, the very same that Cleopatra used, rediscovered, modernized and put up in attractive bottles.

The Charm of Beautiful Hair

There is nothing which can balance the missing charm of fine, healthy hair; no beauty of face or figure, no charm of manner, no pretty clothes. Either your personal charm is perfected by the fine beauty of healthy, luxuriant hair—or it is marred by the lack of it. You cannot evade it; you cannot hide it. Lura Liquid Shampoo makes possible the most careful attention to the hair. It gives a glossiness, a silky sheen, a golden tint that is not possible by the use of any other shampoo or tonic. You can, by the use of it, bring back that wonderful natural beauty; that beautiful youthful lustre. You owe it to yourself, and your position in life demands that you give as much attention to your hair as you do to your teeth, your hands, and, in fact, your general physical condition.

People of refinement have discovered that the prophylactic action of this wonderful preparation keeps the hair and the scalp clean, pure and wholesome. It stops itching, cools the fevered scalp and imparts a marked sense of cleanliness. A bottle of Lura Liquid Shampoo will last you many weeks, as it requires a smaller quantity than any other shampoo, which therefore makes it the most economical shampoo on the market.

It makes a delightfully refreshing lather which leaves the scalp with that clean feeling, and the hair fluffy, fragrant and bright.

Lura Will Youthfulize Your Hair

Its use brings back the gloss and brightness of Youth without altering the color in the smallest degree. So be assured, this product primarily is a shampoo, not a coloring or a dye. On the other hand, Lura may be used to add the fashionable golden tint to your hair—the directions tell you how. It is good for men, women and children. LURA Henna Shampoo, 8-oz. bottle; LURA Ideal Shampoo (without Henna), 6-oz. bottle. At all druggists'.

NOTE. To prove what Lura will do for your hair, Ideal Laboratories Co., Chicago, will send sample test bottle upon receipt of 10c in coin or stamps to cover packing and postage. Be sure and state which product is desired, Lura with Henna or without.

L AND BAY STATE ALSO OPPOSE TRANSIT PLAN

Mayor Curley's opposition to the plan to form a Metropolitan Transit District, to take over all the trolley, railroad, steamship and subway lines within a radius of six miles of Boston and to operate that as a single unit with a single rate of fare, was today supported by the public trustees of the EaEstern Massachusetts Street Railway and by a delegation of Boston representatives.

Representative Elijah Adlow of Boston, speaking before the Street Railway's committee, asserted that the bill is so vicious, "there will be another sweet investigation if it is passed."

Assistant Corporation Counsel, Joseph P. Lyons declared the city of Boston would not only lose its subway rentals of $2,000,000 a year but would have to pay $1,000,000 a year toward the deficit of the operation of the new system.

The proposed plan contains no gurantee of re[illegible] fares, he said.

Chairman Homer Loring of the public trustees said the Eastern Massachcusetts objected to having the new system take over the Orient Heights-Revere Beach line without taking over the entire Chelsea division.

Loring said he wrote Mayor Peters two years ago that the Hyde Park line was in splendid condition and would soon be able either to reduce fares or build new extensions.

COAST BOXER UPSETS DOPE AND BEATS MIDGET SMITH

DANNY EDWARDS WINS TEN ROUND AWARD

By JACK CONWAY

Danny Edwards lived up to all the fine things that Jack Dempsey told the writer about the Californian when he smashed his way to a ten-round victory over Midget Smith at the Boston Arena.

They were ten thrilling rounds, in which Edwards' brilliancy as a boxer and ability to count with heavy right-hand punches offset Smith's aggressiveness and effective body punching.

It was also a setback for the grand old dope. We picked Smith to win. We figured that his body punches would turn the tide of battle in his favor.

Smith did do some good socking to the body, but he did not follow up all of his leads. At times he merely clinched while at close quarters.

When the decision was rendered, many of the fans booed it. They thought Smith won. We do not agree with them. Edwards was never in distress and appeared able to keep out in front at all times.

SCORED HEAVILY IN SIXTH.

In the sixth round, Edwards did his best work of the entire fight. A stunning right-hand punch to the body stopped Smith in his tracks. The Midget was in pretty tough shape and was obliged to do some clinching in order to avert a knockdown.

Midget must be given great credit for coming back and winning the seventh and eighth chapters. He fought like a wounded tiger, which proves the kind of combative stuff that is in his makeup.

We saw Smith fight in New York a year ago. On that occasion he showed to better advantage at close quarters than he did against Edwards. He didn't loaf so much when he was within the enemy lines as it were. Instead he whaled away for all he was worth with both hands.

Smith started off at a rapid clip in the first round. He paraded to close quarters and landed heavily to the body. He then rushed Edwards up against the ropes and counted some more. Edwards battled back as best he could and landed with some damaging wallops to the head and body.

EDWARDS WINS THIRD ROUND.

The Edwards surge started in the third round. Boxing like a whirlwind, Edwards counted heavily with left and right hand wallops to the head and body.

The fourth round was even, while Edwards had a healthy margin in the fifth and sixth. It was in the sixth frame that Danny had Smith groggy as a result of a hefty right hand wallop to the stomach.

Followed the Smith come back in the seventh and eighth. The ninth round was Smith's by a shade, while Edwards whirled out front in the final stanza.

Young Tansey of Roxbury won a questionable decision over Newman Reagan of Brockton in the semi-final of eight rounds.

Dinny Glynn of Roxbury defeated George Fox of England in eight frames, while Young Kansas of Providence bested Willie Reagan of New York in eight chapters.

It was announced that the Arena A. C. would stage four star ten-round bouts at its meeting next Monday night.

Eddie Shevlin will try to avenge himself on Jack Perry, Paul Doyle will battle Nate Siegal, Pat McCarthy will meet the best available opponent, while Jimmy Amato White will quarrel with Sammy Terrin.

Reservations for this show may now be secured.

TRACEY FIGHTS AGAINST BILL BRENNAN

New York, May 16.—Jim Tracey, the elongated heavyweight champion of Australia, will be put to the well-known acid test tonight when he faces Bill Brennan in one of two fifteen-rounders in the Madison Square Garden ring.

The other star event will bring together in a return match Augie Ratner, the popular Harlem middleweight and Jock Malone, of St. Paul. A six and a four round bout will precede the others.

Tracey has come here all the way from Australia with a chip on his shoulder. When they matched him with Brennan he congratulated his managers and said they had done a good day's work.

Straight away he went to a gymnasium and got himself in perfect shape. Constantly there were calls for additional sparring matches. He is confident of beating Brennan, and beating Bill to a match with Champion Dempsey.

Brennan is not taking the foreigner cheaply, so he too, has got into the condition he was in fourteen months ago, when he stood off Dempsey for twelve rounds. Kid Norfolk, Panama Joe Gans and the Shade brothers, Bill and George, helped him get in shape. Norfolk and Gans worked so hard with Bill for the Dempsey scrap that when it was all over Brennan gave each a big monetary present.

Interest has picked up over the week-end in this particular bout. The word has been passed around that Brennan will encounter a rough citizen in Tracey, and the latter made a number of friends by his fine work in the gym. Tracey is a likeable, big fellow, bright and a great reader. During all his spare time he delves into Irish history, of which he is very fond.

Fireworks will be exploded when Ratner and Malone collide. They fought ten hard rounds in Boston six weeks ago, at the end of which the decision went to Malone. Ratner's manager, Doc Bagley, made an awful squawk and it remained for Matchmaker Frank Flournoy of the Garden to rematch them. They're going in there to win as quickly as possible.

Joe Becket, the English champion, has challenged the winner.

Norwich will attempt to snatch victory away from the Boston College stars this afternoon at University Heights.

The Maroon and Gold nine is confident after soundly licking Fordham that Norwich will be the first of the victims with which the Eagle hopes to start its last half of the season.

The contest with Fordham proved that the B. C. team has the stuff of which champions are made. The New Yorkers having defeated Boston in their first meeting, were determined to respect the performance. They put up a fine battle, but the heavy hitting B. C. team was too much for the Fordham twirlers.

Vargus will probably start the game for Boston College. In previous games, Vargus has worked very nicely and ought to have little difficulty in turning back the Vermont invaders.

Tomorrow afternoon, Boston College will play its second game with Providence at Alumni Field. The Eagles had little trouble in defeating Providence in their first meeting and ought to hang a second defeat on the Rhode Islanders without ex- Palmer ss.

TWO OPENING TWILIGHT GAMES TONIGHT

Although the Boston Twilight League got underway last evening, the fans at Dorchester and North Cambridge will have an opportunity to witness their first league game in their districts, and as the case in the other opening games bands will play, and the festivities will be graced by the presence of Mayor Curley at the Dorchester game, and Mayor Edward Quinn of Cambridge will do his stuff at the Cambridge battle.

The South Boston All Stars will battle with strong Dorchester Club nine at the Dorchester Town Field. Claude Davidson's Dorchester outfit will conduct their formal getaway and Mayor Curley promises to speak a few words of encouragement and will present the city trophy to the youthful ball stars. Plenty of entertainment has been booked and things point to a twilight full of action.

At North Cambridge Leahy's North Cambridge Knights of Columbus Club play their opening game. Mayor Quinn will present the city of Cambridge trophy and the program calls for the turnout of the City Council, and with a band, headed by a platoon of bluecoats, there will be a parade to Russell Field.

St. Joseph's of Somerville will be the visiting team for the Knights to battle with and from all indications plenty of action is looked forward to.

BILLIARD TITLE AGAIN AT STAKE

Chicago, May 16.—Jake Schaefer and Welker Cochran will start play tonight in their 1,500 point match for the world's 18.2 balkline billiard championship. They will play three 500 point blocks, starting nightly at 8 o'clock.

Schaefer, the champion, is slightly favored by the experts to win, because of his notable achievement in winning out over Willie Hoppe twice, in the tournament and again when Hoppe, second in the tournament standing, challenged.

Both Schaefer and Cochran now claim San Francisco as their home, although Jake was born here, and Cochran, born at Manson, Iowa, was educated here.

DARTMOUTH'S TENNIS TEAM PLAYS WILLIAMS

Hanover, N. H., May 16. — Dartmouth's undefeated tennis team has gone to Williamstown, where it meets the Williams net men today.

The Green players have defeated their last four opponents without losing a match. Dartmouth opposes Yale Wednesday at New Haven, and the Hartford Tennis Club Thursday.

Captain Sanders, Carlton, Howe and Smith made the trip.

FERDIE SCHUPP COMES BACK TO THE BIG SHOW

Kansas City, Mo., May 16.—The Chicago White Sox have traded Pitchers Roy Wilkinson, John Rubell and a third pitcher to be announced later to the Kansas City club of the American Association in exchange for Pitcher Ferdie Schupp.

Watertown at Arlington

Arlington High will play a Mystic Valley League game this afternoon with Watertown on Spy Pond Athletic Field, Arlington.

GOLF

By F. G. THAYER.

John Cowan won the individual prize at Wollaston with a 75 in a gale of wind on an easier course. His 75 yesterday was sound golf and nearer the par.

* * *

Miley's card for the inward morning round had two threes, one two, two fives and the rest fours. Pretty hard to beat this golf. Threes on the last two holes is as perfect as could be expected—super golf.

* * *

The best ball of the field for the two rounds was:

Out ......3 4 4 3 4 2 4 3 4—31
In ....2 4 3 3 3 4 3 3 3—27—58

This is just two strokes worse than the same card in the Wollaston open two weeks ago and on a course several strokes harder and yards longer than the latter.

* * *

Nichols' and Davis' summaries of their four nine holes of 36, 35, 35, 36 were consistent and shows why they won the big money. The Miley and Lord card reads—38, 38, 41, 36. The Hoxie-Sanderson and Rooks-Gordon cards were 36, 38, 37, 35 and 37, 36, 37, 34 respectively.

* * *

Tom Dean's deuce at the tenth was a sweet one, but might have been luckier, as he hit the cup from the tee and rolled two feet.

* * *

In the afternoon on the 233-yard fourth, David Hackney buried his tee shot in the sand bunker guarding the green. His lie was a terrible one, right up against the bank of the steep-sided trap, but his second was tuned right, hitting about two inches to the left of the flag and the only thing that spared the deuce was the "stuff" on the ball.

* * *

Middlesex retained the lead in the district women's league by defeating the last year's championship Providence team 4 ½ 3. While they were checking Providence's rising hopes at Winchester, North Shore were administering defeat to South Shore at Tedesco, breaking the deadlock of these two teams for second place in the standing. The following is the way the teams line up with three matches yet to be played: Middlesex won 8 and lost 2; North Shore, 7 wins to 2 defeats; South Shore, 6 wins to 3 defeats; Providence, 6 to 4. The other four teams are hopelessly out of the running.

YALE'S CAPTAIN NOT IN BOAT SATURDAY

New Haven, Conn., May 16.—Jim Corberry, coach of the Yale crew, has announced the make-up of the Varsity crew which will row against Cornell and Princeton on the Housatonic river Saturday.

Captain Langhorne Gibson will watch the race from the launch as he is the victim of a strained back. In his place at No. 5 will be Ellis, a member of the 1920 varsity crew.

The crew will be seated as follows: Whitney, bow; Carman, No. 2; Russell, No. 3; Rockefeller, No. 4; Ellis, No. 5; Goodwin No. 6; Haldeman, No. 7; Freeman, stroke; Chase, coxswain.

The finals for the class championship crew to race against the championship class crew at Harvard next Saturday were held on the Housatonic yesterday and were between the first junior and the first sophomore crews. The junior crew won. It was seated as follows: Owen, bow; Bulkley, No. 2; Tolles, 3; Day, 4; Trowbridge, 5; Bentley, 6; Brooks, 7; Williams, stroke; Barnard, coxswain.

Roxdors Want a Game

On account of cancellation the Roxdors are without a game for May 28. Any fifteen year old team will get the game by writing to Albert Flynn, 18 East Cottage street, Dorchester, Mass.

WONDER HITTER HERE WITH THE BROWNS

By NICK FLATLEY.

Storm signals were flying for the pitchers when the St. Louis Browns and the Red Sox hooked up this afternoon, to open their first series of the vernal campaign. They look like two of the best hitting outfits under the large tent, and the sound of the sock will likely be heard in the land for the next three or four P. Ms.

There's a lot of interest in the St. Louis squad in this section, where nobody would be exactly sore if some club nosed out the Boston-made Yankees for the gonfalon. The Brownies have been dangerous for the past couple of seasons, but have been handicapped by a bad start.

This year, Fohl got his team off on the proper pedal, and isn't any farther from the roof than a flapper could throw a bean bag. A win any day now will give the Westerners the pinnacle perch, provided the Yanks lose, which stunt they are perpetrating in a fashion that has New York startled.

Howl for Dethronement of Miller Huggins

The annual howl for the dethronement of Miller Huggins is going up, and the little leader is due to get it in the region of the collar garage if his team doesn't pick up rapidly. Of course the usual alibi is present, now it's the fact that Ruth and Meusel are spectators.

But the commission defiers get back into action Saturday, and that will be out. We have a hunch that it will take more than the pair of sluggers to iron out the Yankee troubles, but that's a matter that only the next couple of weeks can decide.

Browns Will Keep Baseball Steamed Up Hereabouts

TODAY'S DOPE
St. Louis Bowns to beat Red Sox at Fenway Park.
Braves to beat Pirates at Pittsburgh.

For the present the Browns will keep baseball steamed up hereabouts, as the club has the home-run habit, and is in a fair way of hanging up a few records for the Yanks et al. to shoot at. Homers don't come as easily at Fenway Park as in most of the other ball lots, but when the circuit clout does arrive it's always one of those long bangs that tickle the fan heart more than any other single thing in the game.

Ken Williams will have to put all his carry on the ball to get it into the right field bleachers, but the stunt can be done, as the big hitters have demonstrated now and then. Boston pitchers have displayed a lot of class off and on in this home stand, most of the local victories being shutouts. So it's a cinch that the lank slugger of the invaders will not get many cripples to take a toe hold on.

Jack Quinn Will Oppose Urban Shocker on Mound

As things have been going this season, Jack Quinn should oppose Urban Shocker on the mound in the initial fray, as both spitballers have been opening series for their clubs. But the pair of them worked Friday, so a change in the program seemed likely, unless the veterans insisted.

Fohl had Bayne and Davis ready to take the hill, while Karr and Ferguson were in line for the Red Sox. It was a cinch, though, that whoever went in there would need all his stuff, else get a hurried bombardment to the showers.

B. C. HIGH ARTILLERY MOWS DOWN RINDGE

By FRED C. LANE.

The batting of the Boston College High boys won for them another verdict at Russell Field yesterday, when they trimmed Rindge Tech to the tune of 5 to 2. Rallies in the eighth and ninth put the game on ice for the Maroon and Gold standard bearers.

The contest for seven frames was as pretty a pitchers' battle as has been staged on a local diamond for some time, with Bill Fallon of B. C. High opposing Joe Hayes of Rindge. Each was in rare condition for this thrilling contest.

The support of the Rindge team was inclined to be a bit wobbly at times but as a whole was as good as has been shown all along by the Cantabs. B. C. High had but one error chalked against its columns, that being made by Fallon.

Rindge scored in their half of the first inning when Loring drew a pass, advanced on Allen's sacrifice, and tallied when Robinson bumped one between first and second.

Coach Dempsey's boys came back strong in the second. Tim Dempsey placed one past second for a safety, and Lowe's hit to deep right put him on third. Dempsey scored when Allen dropped an easy toss from Conlon's bat.

The game jogged along until the eighth, when the heavy guns of B. C. High got into play. Four clean hits, one of which went for three bases, gave the visitors two runs.

Hayes was hauled in the ninth when Shields hit safely, being replaced by Kane, who met a similar fate. Three more hits, one of the three-ply variety, put the game on ice.

Fallon had eleven strike outs for his sare of the glory, allowing but four hits. His arm is still a little sore, as evidenced by four passes. Hayes pitched a good game, and deserved a better fate. The batting and fielding of McCarthy was the feature of the contest.

SHARKEY FIGHTS MARTIN AT BROOKLYN MAY 20

New York, May 16.—Jack Sharkey, who was recently graduated into the featherweight division for the sole purpose of relieving Johnny Kilbane of his crown, is working like the well-known beaver for his bout with "Pepper" Martin at Squire Ebbets' ball park in Brooklyn, Saturday.

The bout on Saturday will be more or less an argument to determine who will have the first shot at Kilbane's crown. Sharkey turned featherweight as his manager, Joe Wagner, believes that the West Side boy can beat the champion over any distance.

TECH AND B. C. FAVORED IN NEW ENGLANDS

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Worcester draws this week's leading track attraction.

Those, with Harvard or Princeton interests at heart, will, of course, centre their attentions upon the annual Tiger-Crimson dual meet at Princeton, but, except for that, local track interest will be found in the annual get-together of the nineteen New England colleges that form the New England Intercollegiate Athletic Association—the meet this year being scheduled for Friday and Saturday afternoon on the Worcester Polytech athletic field.

A real meet is the N. E. I. C. A. A. affair.

Time was when it seemed a sort of a Dartmouth dress parade. The finishes of the running events suggested a Green-clad army executing East by squads, double time, March!

Sometimes a maroon, or purple, or blue-jerseyed figure would step in and slightly change the color scheme, but the customary order at the finish was, "Dartmouth 79⅜ points; Siwash, 11; Wow College, 1¼; Whoozis Aggies, ⅛"; and the remaining one-quarter of a point split 13 ways.

But, a few years before the war, Dartmouth bowed itself out of the picture to the great delight of everyone else concerned, and nowadays the remaining 19 institutions enter the meet with all the zip and nerve in the world, each firm in the belief its team will take the championship.

So it will be this week.

Tech Believes Team Will Repeat Last Year's Victoy.

Tech rooters believe their team will repeat its victory of last year; Boston College enthusiasts say Jack Ryder's team will come forth champion; Bowdoin partisans assert the Maine school to be the one logical winner; ditto Brown, Williams, Bates, Wesleyan and all the others.

Many of the individual winners and point scorers of last year again are representing their respective schools while there is no end of new track and field material of promise listed among the hundreds of entries, and that the marks will be of as high or higher calibre as last year, and the competition more keen, is certain.

In the 100-yard dash Joe Carter of Brown, the winner last year, and Creighton Miller of Williams, who finished second, are due to reappear.

In the 220, Jake Driscoll of Boston College, the winner; Joe Carter of Brown, second; Linsley Dodge of Williams, third, and Don Thomas of Maine, fourth, all are again entered.

Jake Driscoll Will Run Again in the Quarter

In the 440, Jake Driscoll, the winner; Cliff Stowers of Williams, third, and Walton Forstall of Brown, fourth, are once more candidates.

In the 880, Stew Richmond of Williams, and Jack Sheppard of Vermont, fourth, will be at it again.

In the mile, Elmer Sanborn of Tech, who finished fourth, will try to move up two or three places.

In the two-mile, Ray Buker of Bates, the winner; and Bob Hendrie of Tech, fourth, will answer the clerk of course once more.

In the high hurdles, Phil Phillips of Williams, third, will be out to improve his place.

In the low hurdles Ken Carrington of Wesleyan, second, and Frank Wing of Amherst, fourth; are coming back for more.

In the high jump, Bob Clark of Amherst, the winner, Brock Darling of Amherst, second, Ed Merrill of Tech, third and Bill Greenough of Tech, fourth, are set to wage another merry battle.

In the broad jump, Bill Nolan of Boston College, the winner, Jack Mendes of Williams, second, Charley Johnson of Wesleyan, third and Irv Reid of Brown, fourth, are again on deck.

In the pole vault, Morris Shelden of Tech, the winner; and Phil Stearns of Tech, second, are rearin' to go.

In the shot put, Dick Chutter of Vermont, third; and Bill Case of Holy Cross, fourth, will cluster the circle once more.

In the hammer throw, "Toot" Tootel of Bowdoin, second; and "Ton" Tonon of Tech, third, are waiting to do their stuff.

And, in the discus, Austin Ferris of Holy Cross, third, will answer "Here," when they read his name.

Rare Quality of Competition Indicated for Both Days

Seldom if ever have so many former champions and place winners returned to strive for additional or greater honors, and when, to their names, is added the long list of promising new talent, the rare quality of the Friday and Saturday competition at Worcester is indicated.

In the list forwarded to the writer by Major Frank H. Briggs of Tech there are 86 entries in the century; 84 entries in the furlong; 72 entries in the quarter; 76 in the half; 76 in the mile; 70 in the two mile; 52 in the high hurdles; 66 in the low hurdles; 54 in the shot; 54 in the high jump; 39 in the hammer; 48 in the pole vault; 72 in the broad jump, and 60 in the discus.

BIG ENTRY LIST FOR AMATEUR RING BOUTS

With the largest entry list of the season and the greatest demand for seats in the history of the St. Joseph's T. A. S., the junior boxing championship will be staged at the Boston Arena tomorrw night.

Competition will be held in eight classes.

Boxers will compete in the 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160, 170 and heavyweight classes. This will bring out every boxer of prominence in the district. The eight New England champions who won their titles at the recent bouts at Mechanics Building already have entered, and Pres. Cuddy announces that they will be fortunate to hold their titles, as they will meet sturdy opposition.

As it is the final big tourney of the season and as the entry list is larger than ever before, the popular West End organization has been forced to seure the Arena in order to accommodate the demand of the fans who want to be clustered around the ring when the simon pures get into action.

The winner of each class will represent New England in the junior champions to be held in Madison Square Gardens, New York, May 24 and 25. Boston is anxious to win some of the classes in this tourney.

President Cuddy announced that the tickets will range in price from 50 cents to 2. This will put them within the reach of all.

Reservations can be secured today and tomorrow at the B. A. A., Boston Arena and Room 12, 28 School Street.

TARZAN TOLBERT WILL COACH OKLAHOMA

Norman, Okla., May 16.—James R. (Tarzan) Tolbert, Jr., Harvard football guard of 1920, captain of the Harvard basketball team in 1921 and holder of the Yale-Harvard-Cambridge-Oxford international shotput record, has been added to the coaching staff of the University of Oklahoma for 1922-23, according to an announcement on Ben G. Owen, director of athletics.

Tolbert began his university career at Oklahoma in 1915, when he was a tackle on the freshman squad, then in 1916 he was varsity tackle with the "Sooners," but the war caused him to enlist in the Army in the spring of 1917, which took him out of athletics until December, 1918, when the famous Thirty-sixth Division football squad was organized in the A. E. F.

"Bon," as Tolbert was known throughout the A. E. F. and in his native State of Oklahoma, worked steadily as tackle with the Thirty-sixth Division squad until the close of the military tournament March 28 at Paris when the Eighty-ninth Division defeated the Thirty-sixth for the A. E. F. championship, 14 to 6. The Withington brothers and Eddie Mahan, former Harvard gridiron stars, were associated with the Thirty-sixth Division and with Tolbert while in France and the big Oklahoman entered Harvard in 1919.

He was a member of the Harvard second squad in 1919 and in 1920 moved up to the Crimson varsity team.

In basketball in 1921, Tolbert was the Crimson captain and in track and field events he represented his school in the shot put. He was elected captain of the track and field team for 1922, but resigned in order to enter Harvard Law Schol.

Although ineligible for athletics this year, Tolbert was added to the coaching staff of Harvard and directed the work of the freshman football, basketball and track squads.

He will come to Oklahoma next Fall and assume his duties as football line coach to succeed Grover C. Jacobsen. He will also work in basketball and track after the football session.

Coaching at Oklahoma will not interfere in the big athlete's pursuit of the law. Tolbert will continue his law studies at Oklahoma in hope of working out his LL. B. degree in 1924.

ENGLISH HIGH DEFEATS ANCIENT RIVALS, LATIN

English High toppled its ancient rival, Boston Latin, 8 to 0, yesterday at the Walpole street grounds.

The Murray-coached charges played fine ball all the way. They received and made the most of the favorable breaks and in addition slammed Finnegan hard.

Opposing the latter on the mound was Brackman, who looked mighty good every inch of the distance.

It seems quite possible that the Blue and Blue will make the favorites, Dorchester and Commerce, in the Boston city championship race, hustle to win.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY LOSES TO WEST POINT

According to official scores received today ,the Boston University pistol team lost out to West Point, which had a score of 1363, while Boston University had 1287.

In spite of the fact tha tthe Boston boys were beaten, the score was very creditable, for four or five men who shot qualified as expert pistol men, for which a score of over 80 p ercent. is necessary.

CALZA TO TAKE ON PLESTINA THURSDAY

By RINGSIDE.

You have got to hand i' to George Calza, Italian heavyweight wrestling champion.

We have Strangler Lewis, Earl Caddock, the Zbyszko brothers and Jim Londos all running to cover at the mere mention of the name of Marin Plestina, considered by many experts as the world's greatest mat artist.

Then the twenty-one year old Italian wonder, who has scored nineteen straight victories, hops into the picture and announces to the world he is ready and anxious to engage in a test of skill and strength with Plestina.

Boston, which has surged out front on the wrestling map once more, is to witness this great match. The affair will be staged at the Grand pera House Thursday night under the direction of the Old Howard management. This venerable playhouse is sure to be jammed to capacity by the thousands of fans who will be eager to see what Calza can do against the mighty Plestina.

It is to be a ninety minute handicap match. Plestina will forfeit $1000 to Calza if he fails to secure a fall within this time limit. Furthermore if the Italian champion secures a single fall, Plestina will have to separate himself from another $1000.

Broadcasting the Styl-flash
QST

In the International Signal Code Q S T is a General Call for "All Persons to Stand By"—and get the STYL-FLASH.

When you catch the Style Signals from the Broadcasting Station at Style Headquarters "tune out" all the amateur style operators and ordinary commercial price messages and adjust your receiver to a 245 wave length, and you'll get the Styl-Flash.

As far as I know the Styl-Flash is the only new style-thought worked out in a White Straw hat this Season. I took a walk around town last night and did a little window shopping all by myself and I couldn't discover a new idea worth broadcasting. If I did I would tell you all about it.

In most all of the stores White Straw hats predominated strongly, but in one or two windows I noticed a number of Brown Straws. I believe, however, that when the average man "parks" his last Winter's Brown Felt he wants something that feels light and looks like Summer—he wants a change from brown to white and the Styl-Flash is the answer.

Now, if you want a Suntone Tuscan Tan I've got the best, and if you want a White Straw I've got something better, that is, the STYL-FLASH. As a matter of fact, I have all colors and all proportions in all weaves. I've got everything as usual and something in particular, and that "SOMETHING" is the STYL-FLASH.

The new Feather-weight Amplified Edge with the light Radio Weave adds to the appearance without adding to the weight.

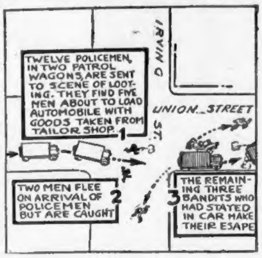
EVERETT POLICE GRILL PAIR IN HUNT FOR AUTO BANDITS' CAR



TWELVE POLICEMEN, IN TWO PATROL WAGONS, ARE SENT TO SCENE OF LOOTING. THEY FIND FIVE MEN ABOUT TO LOAD AUTOMOBILE WITH GOODS TAKEN FROM TAILOR SHOP. 1

TWO ARRESTED, THREE escaped, twenty shots fired, goods intact! That sums up this bold attempt by five auto bandits to loot the tailor shop at Union and Irving streets, Everett. Diagram shows how robbers fled, opening fire as they disappeared. Achille Di Grazia, Everett, and Philip Vellella, Boston, were the pair arrested. They were held in $5,000 bail.

EVEN HAMLET WOULD have shuddered at this! Worshippers of the "galloping dominoes" with a ghoulish sense of humor insist on picking out beautiful Woodlawn Cemetery to chase "lady luck" about. But indignant mourners and residents in the neighborhood are sick of it. A police watch was established and eleven game gamesters, considerably "outaluck," landed in the lap of the law by playing dice just once too often. They were arrested, arraigned and paid $5 each and costs. The Everett police say "that's all there is, there isn't any more." "We wonder," say the neighborhood residents.

IT'S NOT HOW MUCH IS YOUR HOUSE WORTH— but how much can they get away with! Robert Kennedy in 1918 paid $83.60 taxes on this house at No. 11 Arthur street, Somerville. Last year he paid $121.29. His valuation was increased only $100. Do you blame prospective residents for not settling there under these conditons?

"HOOKEY" FROM SCHOOL AND "HOOKING ON BEHIND" AUTOMOBILES INVARIABLY LEADS THE YOUNG adventurer into an accident ward! Traffic Officer Langhille, who supplements his lectures with moving pictures showing the danger of not playing safe, explains to the boys that it looks like great fun to ride on the spare tire rack of autos, but that there isn't much fun in becoming maimed for life or risking death. The last diagram pictures what generally occurs from "hooking on" — the boy [illegible] and is run over.

"HOOKING ON" AUTOS IS SHOWN AS A DANGEROUS PASTIME. TO PROVE IT THIS IS USUALLY THE RESULT

DO YOU KNOW THAT MORE THAN 1,500,000 PERSONS WERE KILLED OR INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE accidents in 1921? Careless Boston folk helped to swell the casualty list. Children figure in an alarming percentage of the accidents. Out in Dorchester movies are used to instruct the youngsters against carelessness. Above, at left, is Traffic Officer F. F. Langville warning Greenwood school boys against haphazardly crossing the street. The result, he tells them, is nearly always like that shown in the second picture.

CHICAGO'S IRON HAND OF BOSS RULE GONE

Chicago, May 16.—The iron hand of boss rule which has swayed or ruled labor here for more than twenty years has lost its grip.

"Big Tim" Murphy, from his cell in the County Jail, renounced his throne.

"I'm through with labor," Tim said.

For years Murphy's role has been a romantic one—as far as romance and industry of the type which he found it easy to rule with absolute despotism [illegible]—for Murphy had set himself at the head of unskilled labor. His present job is the president of the Gas Workers' Union.

"The treasury's almost empty," he added by way of explanation, "because so many of the men are not working."

MOTHER VISITS HIM.

Indicted for murder in connection with the killing of two policemen last Wednesday, Murphy's mother paid him a visit on Mother's Day. He is taking her advice, he said, in quitting the labor game.

"My mother told me I had better get out of it. She said to me, 'Tim, take my advice and quit. They'll get you in wrong yet.'"

Whether it is his mother's anxiety for him or because of the seriousness of the situation confronting the alleged radical leader of organized labor, especially in the building trades, which has caused "Big Tim" to abdicate may find its answer in the prediction made by police.

"Murphy, Mader and Shea will hang," police said.

Mader and Shea are two other officials of the trades unions, who with Murphy are said to form the all-powerful labor triumvirate of Chicago. All are indicted on a charge of murder.

HAYMARKET RIOT.

Fred "Frenchy" Mader is head of the Fixture Hangers' Union and Cornelius "Con" Shea is president of the Theatrical Janitors and Stage [illegible].

It's a long story, the history of Chicago's labor wars. It dates back to the period of industrial unrest that ended in the "Haymarket riot" more than thirty years ago.

Three men swung for the death of a policeman killed by a bomb thrown into a crowd, listening to a radical speech.

Although it never was known who threw [illegible] Fischer, Parsons and Spies paid [illegible]. Lingg, a fourth man, swallowed a dynamite cap and killed himself in jail.

Police today say there will be no mistake when ringleaders of Chicago's new reign of terror are brought to justice.

Confessions to the police are said to have been made by the score. It will not be on circumstantial evidence that convictions for the terrorist gangsters will be sought.

With bombs playing a prominent part in the demonstrations of those dissatisfied with the awards made to building trades workers by Kenesaw M. Landis while he still was Federal Judge, there are many analogies presented to the Haymarket riot. But there is no comparison in the make-up of the principals.

"Big Tim" Murphy, Mader and Shea found the ruling of unions in Chicago a very lucrative proposition, books, memoranda, letters and files seized by the police show.

The case against the three men has been strengthened by three confessions, it is said, "that show in minute detail the amazing conspiracy that led to the recent outrages."

The finding of dynamite, percussion caps and fuse in the home of John Miller, owner of the automobile from which the gangsters are said to have fired the fatal shots early Wednesday morning, draws the net tighter, police declare.

FIERY, ITCHY SKIN QUICKLY SOOTHED WITH SULPHUR

Says Mentho-Sulphur Overcomes Trouble Over Night

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema, that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops and after two or three applications, the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Rowles Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

A small jar of Mentho-Sulphur may be had at any good drug store.

Los Angeles Examiner Merchandising Service

Maintained for the Benefit of Advertisers

Organized Assistance

Organized and systemized effort accomplishes greater results than helter-skelter means however powerful any one of them may be Organized selling methods have proved themselves beyond any question in the marketing of products which enjoy a national demand

For the territory covered by The Examiner
the Merchandising Service is a highly developed and thoroughly systemized help which is yours to command

There come to Los Angeles national advertisers with brands not sold by the dealers in the Pacific Southwest

And here is where
of The Los Angeles Examiner fits into their plans

The Southwestern Retailer published monthly and mailed to every dealer in foods drugs electrical appliances hardware automobiles accessories and such lines has found a place for itself and is a valuable assistant to the retailer by showing him how to display goods in windows or on counters or shelves and how to conduct his business so that he may prosper

The Merchandising Service particularly in and about the City of Los Angeles renders personal contact effort which can be made of great value to any manufacturer

Examiner men going about day after day for weeks and months and years have cultivated friendly relations with the dealers who have come to rely upon them for advice and assistance

This personal relationship is put at the service of Examiner advertisers

Window displays are obtained dealers are made enthusiastic over products to be advertised and co-operate to the extent that brands are made permanent sellers in their stores when the introduction has been made through Examiner advertising and The Examiner Merchandising Service men or from advertising agencies in your own city or state from whom you may learn all the details as to how they proceeded to market their wares

Mr. Crane says:

Mr. Crane came to Los Angeles ten days ago to introduce Hydro-Toron Tires. He gave The Examiner an exclusive ten-page order and enlisted the co-operation of the Merchandising Service Department.

Today, the tenth day, he came in to say that he had twenty-eight dealers, and that already it begins to look as though the factory cannot supply enough goods to meet the demand in Southern California.

When asked the direct question: What is the Merchandising Department doing for you? Mr. Crane said: "They are doing more for me than I have ever seen a Merchandising Service Department do for any advertiser. They are doing for me more than they promised. They are doing for me more even than is absolutely necessary under the circumstances. You see, I have already gotten twenty-eight dealers, many of whom had never heard of Hydro-Toron Tires, and I am pleased beyond my expectations."

have to say about
The Los Angeles Examiner
Merchandising Service

in this territory and what was the result of the effort made by The Los Angeles Examiner Merchandising Service in helping to obtain that end

The Los Angeles Examiner
Merchandising Service men do not undertake the sale of your goods but they do co-operate with your salesmen making your efforts yield greater results in shorter time
at less expense

A feature of Examiner helpfulness is the prizes offered monthly for the best window displays

Hundreds of dealers make these window displays although they know only a few of them can get the cash prizes but the result has been that it teaches them how to make better window displays how to conduct their stores to make more profit how to get new trade and how to hold old trade

California has shown the world
how to conduct co-operative advertising successfully as is evidenced by the orange the raisin the prune and the walnut advertising

Here at The Examiner co-operation is a working reality that is producing results quickly and effectively

What's the good of unknown good?

So far as we know
The Los Angeles Examiner
was the only newspaper in U. S. which in 1921 beat its 1920 record of National Advertising

To the excellent co-operation of an efficient merchandising service organization is due the fact that The Examiner led every Los Angeles newspaper in volume of National Advertising during 1921—and is still leading so far in 1922

So far as we know
The Los Angeles Examiner was third among the newspapers of the U. S. in 1921 in volume of classified advertising

Three years ago we were in 19th place this vast business comes from the masses and is uncontrolled except by direct results to the advertiser

The Examiner was in sixth position among morning newspapers in total advertising lineage in 1921 and carried no department store advertising

Los Angeles Examiner

The Los Angeles Examiner has the largest circulation of any morning and Sunday newspaper published in the Great Southwest, over 125,000 daily, and more than a quarter of a million copies Sunday. Our offices in Chicago and San Francisco are in the Hearst Buildings, in New York, 1834 Broadway.

RUPERT HUGHES' GREATEST NOVEL

How a Beautiful Young Girl Finds Her Redemption In Moving Pictures

READ THIS FIRST

DESTINY had dealt savagely with beautiful young Remember Steddon, daughter of a small-town clergyman. She had given her love to Elwood Farnaby, with whom she sang in the choir, but he was unable to marry her, being the sole support of his drunken father's large family. Dr. Bretherick discovers there is reason for a marriage, but while he is urging this on the girl Elwood is fatally injured in an automobile accident.

THIRD INSTALLMENT

(Back numbers of Mr. Hughes' greatest novel may be secured at the Boston American office.)

THE doctor had not told the exact truth. For once his lie was worse than the truth

Young Farnaby was not dead—not yet. But from what he had been told the doctor was sure that death was decreed. As his mind, so habited to fatal news, struggled with this message, it seemed better to leave Mem in her despair than to raise her to a brief suspense.

He would make a fight for the young man's life, as always; he never gave up while there was any life to fight for. Then if by some strange good fortune he should redeem this youth from the grave, it would be a glorious privilege to restore him to his sweetheart. But if he should keep her hope alive, then lose the war, he must kill her twice

It seemed as if he had struck her dead already. For her clenched hands let each other go, her arms fell outward like the wings of a shot bird, her head fell on her breast, and she was slipping to the floor when he caught her.

For the mercy of this swoon he was as nearly thankful as he could be for anything. He got her up in his arms, carried her to the door, opened it with much fumbling, and staggered up the stairs with her to the spare room, calling to his wife:

Mercy of Swoon

"Get her undressed and keep her in bed till I come back. Don't let her talk. Don't mind what she says. But keep her here till I tell you."

Then he hurried downstairs to meet the crowd running to his gate in pursuit of an automobile. He recognized it as the Seipp car. Its fenders were crumpled and stained, and men got out of it, removed with much trouble a long limp body, and moved up the walk.

When, a little later, Mem came suddenly back to the world, she found Mrs. Bretherick bending bending over her. She felt blankets about her and a pillow under her head. Her shoes and stockings, her hat and her dress, were gone, and she was in a strange room

Getting accustomed to wall-paper and chairs and chromos was the first business, before her soul could begin to orient itself. Then she recalled everything and began to cry out

"Elwood! Tell me about Elwood!"

"Hush, my dear!" was all Mrs. Bretherick would say. She said it very gently, but when Mem tried to leap from the bed the old woman was very strong and held her down, covering her with iron hands and a maddening reiteration of: "Hush! Don't excite yourself The doctor says you must stay here. Hush now, my dear."

Voice From Below

Mem's rebellion was checked by the sound of a loud voice coming up from below. Some one downstairs was explaining something

"You see, it was this way, Doc. I was standin' in front of Parlin's candy store right next the bank there, when I heard some fellers laughin'. Somebody hollered 'Climb a lamp-post, ever'body. Here comes Molly Seipp!' And I seen the big Seipp car comin' along Molley said afterward she allowed to shift from second speed to neutral and put on the foot brake But she got rattled by the crowd round the bank, and slipped into high and stepped on the gas, and the car came boomin' over the sidewalk and mowed right into the crowd. People jumped every which way, and one or two got knocked down, but poor Elwood here, he was just comin' out the bank, and Molly was twistin' the steerinn' wheel so crazy he din't now which way to jump. And the car knocked him right through the big plate-glass window, you know, and up against the steel bars just inside and—well, the bars was all bent, at that Poor Elwood hadn't a chance.

"Molly climbed out of the car and fell over on the sidewal, leavin' the wheels still goin' round. I stepped on the runnin' board and shut off the engine. Then I and some other fellers backed the car out, and whilst the others picked up Elwood and Molly, I seen the motor was still goin' good.

Brought Him In Car

"So we put Elwood in the car and we brought him over to you. Molly's all right except for hysterics, like, but Elwood— Is they any hope for him? Nice boy, too hard workin', honest as the day He had two bank books in his hand—one of 'em the firm's, the other'n was his own little savin' account. He always managed to save somethin' out of nothin.' He helt on to the book, Jims says, till he could hardly git it out of his hand. And it's all cut up with glass and covered with red so at you couldn't hardly tell how much he had in the bank. Nice boy, too. He made a hard fight to live. Didn't holler at tall—just grittin' his teeth and mumblin' somethin' You couldn't make out what he said. Could you, Jim?"

Jim's answer was not audible.

Nor were Mem's protests audible.

She had been bred to expect little of life to make no demands for luxury and to surrender with a cheerful Thy-will-be-done what the Lord took away with perfect right, since He had given it. So now she made no fight, no outcry. She lay still, her head throbbing with the words of Laurence Hope in a song one of her girl friends sang:

Less than the dust beneath thy chariot wheel,
Less than the rust that stains thy glorious sword—

Made Fight in Vain

It was the doctor who made the fight silently but bitterly, fiercely and in vain.

The only noise was made by the Farnaby family when they arrived in a little mob. They came up the street, Mrs. Farnaby from her tub, her forearms covered with dried suds, her red hands snatching her apron hem to and fro. She and the girls wailed aloud, and in the room below Mem could hear the young brothers crying. But none of them wept so bitterly or so loudly as old Fall-down Farnaby, who came staggering up the steps and floundered about the room, freed by drunkenness of all restraints upon his remorse and his fear. And nobody had better reason to reproach his lot than the poor old prey of the thirst fiend, doomed to roll up the hill of remorse in his own hell a heavy stone of repentance that always broke loose at the top and rolled down again, dragging him with it.

Mem was benumbed with her sorrow. It was a proper punishment upon her she was sure; and she spread her arms out as on a crucifix thinking of herself as one of the thieves justly nailed to the tree next to that tree where the Innocent One suffered.

Doctor Bretherick had paused in his desperate battle to listen for sounds from the room above. He had gone to the stairs to ask his wife how Mem was. He had been glad of the prostration of her grief but he was not deceived as to its sincerity.

Mem was still calm when his business was done in the room below and he had turned the spoils of defeat over to his adversary the grim stalker. Doctor Bretherick entered the [illegible] and sent his wife about her business while he dropped his exhausted body into a chair and spurred his exhausted mind to further effort.

Petted Her Hand

He took one of Mem's cold hands in his and petted it and chafed it, shaking his head in wordless sympathy.

"At least he didn't suffer," he lied.

Her woe, for lack of other expression, made use of the smiling muscles as she said:

"That's not true. I heard."

"Well," the doctor sighed, "his sufferings are over anyway. He was a good boy and you're a good, brave girl. And now what are we to do for you?"

She spoke without excitement:

"There's only one thing for me. I can't live, of course. I was sorry I was so sick and I was afraid of my cough, but now I see that God sent it to me as a blessing. Do you think it will carry me off soon?"

The doctor shook his head. This frightened her. She gasped:

"Then it must be—I must do it myself. It's wicked, I suppose, but— Have you got anything that isn't too slow to [illegible]? I don't mind the pain but I don't want to go to hell with an ugly face."

The doctor was so familiar with deaths that he was capable of an occasional irony that looked like flippancy to those who met them only rarely. He was bitterer than Mem could imagine when he sighed:

HEAVEN UNATTRACTIVE.

"No, that's right. It's the pretty faces that go to hell, according to my understanding of it. Heaven is for the homely and the unattractive. Poor things, they need some consolation."

"Don't joke, for mercy's sake, Doctor!" she pleaded. "I couldn't live without Elwood, I don't care to. I've no right to."

He cowed her hysteria with a sharp rein:

"You've no right to your own life now. It belongs to your father and your mother—and to the life that has already begun. Suicide would be worse than cowardice and selfishness in your case, my child. It would be murder."

He was cruelly kind to her like a driver who flogs and stabs a sinking beast of burden out of the deep mire of death and up across the steep crags to the valley beyond.

Mem's very skin shivered and seemed to rise in welts under his goad. Her heart struggled back to its task. Fiercely as it ached it beat with a fuller throb. Her soul brooded somberly, though:

"Well, if it's my duty to live, it's my duty to tell the truth. I'll tell it to everybody. Poor Elwood shan't go into the grave without people knowing how I loved him."

He let her frenzy of devotion carry her up and down the room until she dropped into a chair, exhausted.

Then he took up the whip again.

TOOK WHIP AGAIN.

"My poor little child, I've got to be terrible mean to you for your own sake. You can't do what you want to do. You said yourself that it would kill your father if he knew, it would drive him from his pulpit. And your mother would be crushed too, you said. And as for poor Elwood—wouldn't it simply turn the village against his memory? Everybody thinks of him as a brave, clean young martyr—as he was. But just imagine what would happen if they learned what we know.

"No, honey, you've got to fight it out alone. It's pitiful, but you're going to be glad some day when you look back on it from happiness."

"Happiness!" she groaned. The word was loathsome, despicable. The possibility of it belittled her grief.

The doctor withdrew it. "I don't mean happiness, but some big, high peak of goodness. Your life is going to be lifted up because of this, if you'll only meet it as you must."

"Tell me what to do. Don't make me think. I've got too much to think—about what's dead and gone."

Then she sobbed and sobbed till her eyes were drained again of tears.

The doctor was as weary as she—wearier, for he had her burden to carry as well as his own.

DOCTOR WAS WEARY.

He sought a little respite, not for relief, but for clear thinking. It was hard to think when a broken heart bled and leaped before his eyes.

"What you are to do is this. While I try to figure out the best plan for the future, you go along on home and tell your father and mother that you were here when Elwood was brought here. No—I'll go home with you and I'll tell them. I'll [illegible] the shock has prostrated [illegible] and that you mustn't be spoken to about it. You must be kept quiet and when you cry you mustn't be questioned, just let alone."

"Can't mamma hold me in her arms?" the girl whimpered.

"Yes, and you can tell her the whole story if you want to."

"No, no! I can't! I won't! But I must have her arms around me. I must have arms around me to hold my heart together."

REMEMBER STEDDON LEAVES CALVERLY
At last she was standing on the back platform of a train, throwing tear-sprent kisses to her father and mother—A stirring incident in the great novel, "Souls for Sale"

DELINQUENCY CAUSED BY FAULTY TRAINING

New York, May 15.—Delinquent children are the result, in the majority of cases, of faulty home training, bad environment and improper kinds of amusement, declares Mrs. Martha P. Falconer, of the Department of Protective Social Measures of the American Social Hygiene Association, basing her remarks on a recent nation-wide survey for the purpose of ascertaining causes of the increased number of delinquent children.

RADIO SET REPLACES FIRE HOUSE CHECKER

Kansas City, Mo., May 1.—The checker board and the box of dominoes are about to go the way of the old fire horse and the silver speaking trumpet in the fire houses of this city. The gallant fire laddies have caught the radio fever, and a petition has been offered in the city council to equip each fire station in the city with a radio receiving outfit.

SPARE THE RINSING AND SPOIL THE CLOTHES

No matter how carefully you have washed your clothes, if you have not rinsed every bit of soap out, they will still be yellow. Use a soap that dissolves completely and there is less danger of particles sticking to the clothes to yellow them.

Rinso is an entirely new kind of soap that dissolves instantly, making both water and clothes slippery with its pure, rich suds. It soaks all the dirt out of the clothes so that no hard rubbing is needed to get them spotlessly clean.

Rinso is easier to rinse out than a soap with solid particles to stick to the fabric. But because the rich Rinso suds loosen every bit of dirt, very thorough rinsing is necessary to carry off the dirt.

Rinso is rapidly replacing bar soap for the family wash.

"Our floors are more than clean"

"Some housekeepers think that thorough and frequent scrubbing is all that floors ever need. I had that idea, too, before I realized that average soaps and scouring compounds haven't any effect on germs which get into floor cracks and crannies.

"Sarah Marsh enlightened me. She popped in one Friday morning while I was mopping up the mud the Harrigan boy always brings into the kitchen when he delivers the meat. I don't believe he knows a door mat when he sees one right under his nose.

"Sarah watched me fill a fresh pail of scouring suds. 'Goodness gracious, Ethel!' she exclaimed, 'Why don't you use Sylpho-Nathol in your mop-water? How do you expect to destroy the germs in the dirt that's brought in from the street on people's shoes? Did you ever stop to think of the positive danger that is tracked back and forth across your floors from morning until night?'

"That's how I was introduced to Sylpho-Nathol.

"Sylpho-Nathol is an effective safeguard against germs because it is 4½ times stronger than carbolic acid. But it doesn't hurt your hands a bit, nor injure things. The druggist says it is as safe to have in the house as a cake of scouring soap. Just a tablespoonful in a pail of warm water makes a clean-smelling, pearly-gray solution that's ready for immediate use."

Mop-water is just one of the many things for which Sylpho-Nathol is indispensable. It should be used regularly for sink drains and garbage receptacles; for cellar corners; around the bathroom tiling and fixtures; as a flush for the closet bowl—wherever odors may start or disease germs breed. Sylpho-Nathol comes in four handy sizes, 15c, 35c, 65c, $1.25. Most good grocers and druggists have it. If yours hasn't, he can get it easily. Just ask for it by the name—"Sylpho-Nathol."

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

ROMANCE OF NEWLY WEDDED COUPLE

By Ann Lisle

Copyright 1922 King Feature Syndicate, Inc.

"SILLY!" I taunted. "Jim had the money when he needed it. And the stupid old mortgage won't be a millstone around my neck when he's away. And Richard West, Esq., will know a little discouragement when he sees how his schemes—don't work out."

"His schemes probably go deeper than appears on the surface," replied Carlotta soberly, "or he never would have permitted the matchsafe to wreck it. Unless, of course, he merely lost the safe. That might be—Fate.

"But there's one difficulty which is in my department. That's the revenue from your furnished apartment. You're running a new baby of a business, Anne. You'll need all the cash you can get. How about letting me furnish your place as soon as it's repaired, so you can sublet again?"

Shook Her Head

"You dear!" I cried. But I shook my head as I spoke. "I'd rather rent the place as it is. I'd like it best if I can sublet unfurnished and for what I paid. I'll be glad of a little profit. But I'll take a loss—gamely. I've a business as you say. So I don't need to rely on a furnished apartment for my income."

I met Carlotta's anxious eyes with the most gallant smile I could manage. For deep in my heart I knew that I had a long, hard road ahead—and I had "a new baby of a business" to carry up that road.

"You're a stubborn, proud old dear," exclaimed Carlotta, linking her arm in mine. "You knew that nothing would suit me better than to furnish your apartment as sort of a sisterly loan and then sublet it as we did before. But I know better than to persist. So I'll just find you a tenant as soon as I can. And—now that we've come to the end of our business discussion—how many votes have we for going down to the evening meal?"

"I'm ready for some good home cooking, lady," I replied, trying to regain my poise as I so often do by talking airily as if there were nothing in the world to worry me. "I had a milk chocolate and a sandwich for lunch. All of that-"

"You work too hard," said Carlotta soberly as we trailed down the stairs arm in arm. "Is everything going—smoothly, Anne?"

"I've plenty of business. Too many clients, maybe," I confessed evasively.

Money Tight

"Not looking for any friendly advice, are you, dear? I know how tight money is now, and I thought that if you happened to need some and didn't like the formalities of borrowing from a bank you might let the Dalton Sturges Corporation stand by. Does that appeal to you?"

I squeezed Carlotta's arm cozily to show how much I appreciated her attitude. But nothing could have been further from my thoughts than to permit Pat any knowledge of my affairs—and I didn't see how I could prevent this if I were to accept Carlotta's offer. There was also Neal to consider. He and Phoebe would be coming back before long, and I didn't purpose to let any worries over his big sister cloud my Neal's happiness. Of course, I couldn't give Carlotta any inkling of the truth. So I said coolly:

"Oh, my dear, how could I need to borrow money? I've three big accounts and I'm expecting to be a rich lady some day."

All of which was perfectly true as far as it went, but it gave Carlotta no hint of the truth beneath the surface facts. In another minute her mind was diverted by the one thing in the world which could have switched her interests from those of a friend before she's settled that friend's problems.

As we reached the foot of the staircase one of the maids, who had just answered the door came toward us with a letter on her tray. Naturally, as mistress of the house it was Carlotta who took the letter. But in a second she passed it to me. Her face had gone staring white. I hardly needed to glance at the envelope to know that it was from Tony and was addressed to me.

In silence we proceeded to the table. While I pondered the crossed out addresses which told of forwarding, Carlotta busied herself with directions to Bertha, who was waiting on table. After a moment I ripped open the letter with the prongs of a fork and ran my eye hastily down the brief page of queerly marked characters. Tony manages to write with his left hand. Then I said casually and as if I didn't know perfectly well that Carlotta was quite aware of who my correspondent was:

"It's from Tony. I'll read it aloud if you like."

Read Aloud

"Please—if you don't mind sharing it," murmured Carlotta with an elaborate attempt to be natural.

So I read:

"Dear Anne:

"Vital tidings these—so I'm sending along to make up for all the letters I haven't written you this trip. But I'm sure that Virginia and Carlotta Sturges shared the letter apiece, which is the least I ever did for a good friend, when off a-tripping. Well, lady dear, I'm after hoping that I'll find you in the same splendid and resplendant condition of mind and being in which I found our Betty and in which—alas for human vanity—I left her. Maybe Jim is back in the old haunts. In which case I know all about the smile-that-won't-come-off the fair face of his Lilac Princess. No use relating more, for if I do, where will I find the excuses I need in order to get you to lunch with me at least once a week ad infinitum? Greetings to all the folks we have the happy privilege of loving in common, as 'twere. Faithfully yours,

"Anthony Norreys."

"And that's all," murmured Carlotta dolefully.

"There isn't any more," I added, striving to smile at least.

But I got nothing resembling a smile. Instead, a bleak and doleful face dropped into two trembling hands and for a second Carlotta shook with hushed sobs.

"I Don't Like That Type of a Girl!" And Then When He Marries It Is That VERY Type of a Girl

GIRLS and men are never able to understand this queer quirk in each other. Why will a chap walking along in his youth with one girl so decidedly—youth is SO decided—and emphatically declare his predilection for periwinkle-blue eyes and leaf-gold hair, for dimples and crimson-lipped laughter, for a chubby little figure and gay good nature? And then some other day — maybe not a far day, either—he falls hard and fast in love with solemn brown eyes, soft, almost black hair, willow-wand figure, slim hands and feet, grave and mysterious carnation lips and colorless cream-colored cheeks, and marries this dark-eyed Peri, and goes through life with as passionate an allegiance to brown eyes as he had ever had, when he first started jogging along, for eyes of the sky? And the girl he made his sing-song to, for whom he pronounced his fixed and unchangeable creed, puts up her hands when she comes home from the wedding and wonders.

But that same girl has once, when she wore her hair in a mane down her shoulder-blades and tied her thirteen-year-old legs in black knots under the dining room table, passionately averred to her skeptical family, "I will never marry any but a man with black eyes and hair—I HATE blonds!"

And then has given her little warm heart and lily-soft hand into the keeping of a stalwart chap with the look of a Viking ancestor about him—with shining, smooth, gilded hair, fine, bright blue eyes and fair skin! And she has a fixed aversion to dark men. And turns to look at another blond man when he saunters by—because he reminds her of her husband!

She knows that a something in us that needs William Morris' colorful and strange medieval tales when we are seventeen will be satisfied then sure enough, but will need very different fare to slake our craving for romance when we have passed thirty-one! She knows that youth cannot find beauty in homeliness, and that middle-age can. She knows many such things as that, that the girl who throws up her hands over human nature does not.

Love—he knows of what his magic potion is made, strange, contradictory, beautifully colored ingredients, mixed by himself; so they are no surprise to him—the astonishing results he sees—but he isn't telling—so we have to make an amazed O-mouth over them and pass on.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Daily Short Story

A JEWEL RARE

By Irma Flexer Drenning

"MR. CRAYTON, you look ill. Can't I relieve you of some of your detail work while you rest up for a few days?" There was real anxiety in the young executive's eyes as he questioned the elder man, president of the corporation.

Crayton flashed him a look of gratitude, then shook his head smiling wearily. "Not sick, Worth, just fagged out from playing fairy godfather to an energetic country niece. Dances, dinners, operas, teas. Nancy and I are so exhausted that we have called a halt for a week. Nancy is recuperating in bed at the advice of a doctor. As for me, no more society until this deal is put through."

Worth frowned thoughtfully. "But if it tires you so, why do you do it?" puzzled.

"Duty, my son," solemnly. "This Jewel is our one and only niece, who has lived all her life in Hillsville, a target for the adorations of all the male population. She's alone in the world, and Nancy felt we ought to give her her chance. As Nancy put it, 'Give her a background—atmosphere. Let her meet men of position and influence.'"

It was nearly midnight when a light rap followed by a low, cheery voice. "It's Jewel, uncle," brought both men to their feet. Still in evening dress, a pliant, graceful figure, carrying a tray of refreshments in her slim white hands, she acknowledged the introduction with a direct glance and a smile.

"Simmons told me that you were working hard, so we managed to get a little food together for you," deftly arranging a samovar of steaming tea and a plate of thin moist lettuce sandwiches on a table.

"By George, Jewel," here's the beginning of a romance!" exclaimed Crayton teasingly. "Keep your eye on the new cook. This man here is rather unusual, you know, Jewel. Young, ambitious, one might say personable, he yet professes a disapproval of the modern girl and languishes for the old fashioned kind who can win a man through his stomach. His ideal wife must be able to cook, sew——"

And then one night came the climax. Worth and Crayton, sipping their fragrant coffee with frank enjoyment, heard a startled little cry, a crash—then silence. They reached the kitchen just as Simmons, white with fear, came through the doorway. "It is Miss Jewel," he gasped. "She fell off the ladder."

With three strides Worth was in the kitchen kneeling beside a slim gingham-clad figure lying prostrate on the floor. Tenderly he picked her up, carried her to a couch, and heedless of the presence of others, chafed her hands, stroked her brow and called her name in an agony of fear.

Crayton, his eyes a bit misty, patted her hand and cheek soothingly; then, being a man of intuition, he slipped his arm through Simmons' and quietly drew him out of the room. Half an hour later, with a doctor in tow, he hesitated on the threshold.

"Kenneth Worth," came Jewel's sweet voice, "you're not the first person who has thought so much about the setting that they have forgotten the jewel. It's not a platinum nor a gold setting this Jewel needs to do justice to the stone; just a plain gold band will do!"

RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1922, by Star Company

BUT she did not know. She also knew that soon the son of the house would come down stairs. There would be no difficulty in explaining his presence to his mother. She was accustomed to his frequent absences from the office. He never worked much—the girl reflected scornfully.

Her desire was to get away and divest herself of Patricia's negligee before Richard appeared.

"I will send Addie to you," she said now, disengaging herself from the mother's detaining arms. "So long! I will see you later!"

She hurried down to Patricia's silent room, took off the negligee and hung it in the closet. She had a strange sensation as if she and the dead girl were in a conspiracy. Or—was Patricia looking at her with the mocking smile that had sometimes come to the beautiful face?

Then, dismissing all these fancies as absurd, Adelaide Brown went back to the sickroom.

For the first few days matters were easier for Adelaide than she had feared they would be when she agreed to take the role of the invalid's daughter.

A new element entered into affairs when Jennie brought to her sister the news that Mrs. Brown's eyes were to be operated on two days from now. Could Adelaide come home for the night before the operation?

Adelaide explained this to John Carter when he called that afternoon.

"You want to go home," he sympathized, "and we must arrange it."

He looked at her keenly. "You are tired," he said irrevelantly.

"No, I am not," she contradicted. "But I am anxious about mother."

"Naturally. When is the operation to be performed?"

She told him and he was silent for a minute. Then, "Fix it like this," he suggested. "Let Mrs. Hollingshead think that her daughter is going to bed early tomorrow evening. Bid her good-night, then go home."

"That might be all right," the girl said reflectively, "but what about the next morning?"

"That morning, let Mrs. Hollingshead think that her daughter has received an unexpected invitation to spend the day with a friend, and will not return until after dinner at night."

"Oh!" the girl ejaculated. "Will that be possible?"

"Undoubtedly it will. If you do not object, I will call up the hospital that afternoon and learn how things have gone with your mother. The head man there is a friend of mine," he added by way of explanation. "If everything is all right I will expect you back here about 10 o'clock day after tomorrow night. That is," he hesitated, flushing slightly.

Adelaide looked at him in surprise. He laughed at her inquiring gaze.

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEHOLD

Milk will remove ink stains from cloth if it is applied immediately.

• • •

When preparing a mustard plaster, use the white of an egg instead of water and the plaster will not blister.

• • •

Remove medicine stains from silver spoons by rubbing with a rag dipped in sulphuric acid. Afterwards wash the spoons with soapsuds.

• • •

Are you troubled with cockroaches? Equal parts of borax and sugar mixed and sprinkled about their haunts will keep them away.

• • •

The tapes by which towels are hung often get badly discolored by rust coming off the nails. To prevent this, paint the nails with white enamel.

Milk will not burn if, before heating, a little cold water is put into the saucepan and brought to the boil. The milk can then be heated in the usual way.

Woolen stockings that are past repair can be put to many uses. Cut off the feet, draw one stocking over the other, fold and sew up one end and you have an excellent glove for polishing anything.

I dreamed I was back in England and recognized several places that I saw during the war, and I met a friend of whom I was very fond at that time and who seemed very unhappy.

Lowell. R. R. S

This meeting with an old friend indicates unexpected pleasures in store for you. The unhappiness of your friend, however, indicates that those pleasures will not be so unexpected after all, but will be the culmination of some secret plans you have been making.

OTHER INTERESTING LETTERS

Dream Editor:

Several nights ago I dreamt I saw a white old lady standing at the foot of my bed and I tried to call out; but I could not. Mother says it was the little devil after me. PEGGY D.

On the contrary, Peggy, this is a good sign, as it indicates peace to you.

Helen of Lynn—Your dream should not worry you, as it is merely supposed to predict the marriage of one of yuor dear friends.

Anxious, of East Boston—Of course, you should not give up your plans, as the discussion of your future with your mother, who is dead, is a sign that all is indeed well.

Dear Dream Editor:

I dreamed I was going to see a dear friend of mine and on my way there was a big fence and I could not climb it for something which I could not see pulled me back.

MRS. HELEN J. G.

Great Barrington.

This dream indicates delay in some plans you have been making lately, but the delay will be all for the best.

Dream Editor:

I dreamt of a good many turtles in my kitchen. They came in from the porch.

Malden. ROSE W.

This would seem to indicate that you are about to go on a short journey through the country.

Dream Editor:

I had promised to buy my fiance a chow dog and she dreamt that I was in her house and was attacked by a massive bull dog and nobody could do anything to aid me.

S. V. D.

To dream of dogs is always a sign of friendship to be formed with some one who will prove influential in later life.

YOUNG MOTHER NOW STRONG

Her Mother's Faith in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound led Her to Try it

Kenosha, Wisconsin.—"I cannot say enough in praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My mother had great faith in it as she had taken so much of it and when I had trouble after my baby was born she gave it to me. It helped me so much more than anything else had done that I advise all women with female trouble to give it a fair trial and I am sure they will feel as I do about it.—MRS. FRED. P. HANSEN, 562 Symmonds St., Kenosha, Wisconsin.

A medicine that has been in use nearly fifty years and that receives the praise and commendation of mothers and grandmothers is worth your consideration.

If you are suffering from troubles that sometimes follow child-birth bear in mind that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a woman's medicine. It is especially adapted to correct such troubles.

The letters we publish ought to convince you; ask some of your women friends or neighbors — they know its worth. You will, too, if you give it a fair trial.

Weak and Run-down After Serious Operation

Wincarnis Restores Her Strength

"Not long ago my daughter, a girl of seventeen, was obliged to undergo a serious operation at Bellevue Hospital, which left her in a dreadfully weak and run-down condition. She had no appetite and was as white as a sheet. She really looked as if she had no blood left in her. She was also very nervous.

The doctor had given her some medicine to build her up and, while it doubtless did her some good, still she did not seem able to get her strength back. In fact, her improvement was so slow that it had me mighty worried.

I happened to hear about Wincarnis and what it had done for others, so I got a bottle and started her on it. It worked wonders on her. She began to improve right from the start. It was simply wonderful to see how quickly she regained her strength and put on weight, and how the color came back to her cheeks.

Wincarnis has certainly proved a God-send for my daughter and I strongly recommend it for run-down persons who want to get back their strength."

FINANCE —AND— BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

Here's one interesting characteristic of most men who have become prominently successful in the business world:

They are at heart still boys. The boy peeps through the man, if not very often during business, then frequently while off the chain.

The truth is that any man who has won success at the sacrifice of all his boyishness has not made a real success of his life.

Perhaps it is their boyish qualities that help many men to win their way to the top. Your normal boy is full of enthusiasm; he is full of curiosity, eager to find things out for himself; he does not shun obstacles, but is full of fight.

The men who have achieved most in industry, in finance, in railroading, in mining, in business usually have succeeded in carrying most of these boyish characteristics and qualities into their later life. They have thrown themselves into their work with a will. They have made of business a game, a game to be played as strenuously as the games of boyhood and almost as joyously.

Your natural, unaffected, wholesome boy is very attractive. The thing most often commented upon in reference to notably successful men of affairs is their wonderful "personality." Reflect for a moment and you will realize that the persons whose personality attracts you most are those who are most like boys—happy, genial, radiant, carefree, sincere, trustful, open-hearted, cordial, affectionate, on the square.

* * *

Who is the most boyish, effervescent, genial, popular business leader in America? Every person who knows him would promptly reply "Charles M. Schwab." I have never yet attended a gathering where Schwab, if a speaker, didn't receive a warmer ovation than any other man on the program. Only the other day one of his closest associates remarked to me: "Even when considering some very serious and important business matter, C. M. will crack a joke and put us all in good humor, especially if he had been inclined to be pessimistic or worried over the matter in hand. He is really a great big lovable boy."

* * *

Outwardly, the president of a still greater steel corporation, James A. Farrell, is the personification of dignity. But let him get away from business and on board a boat, and he becomes a care-free, adventuresome boy again. To him business is as fascinating as any boyhood game. Last week he astounded some of the delegates at the Foreign Trade Council, on a water trip which took them past more than 100 Shipping Board vessels lying idle, by being able to tell where ship after ship was built and about how much its weight was. The secret? Mr. Farrell was the man who during the war allotted the steel to the different shipyards, and he has the amazing faculty of being able to carry in his memory every conceivable scrap of information connected in any way with his business activities.

* * *

Every time I think of the head of the largest bank in Chicago I mentally picture him as an overgrown boy. He is George M. Reynolds. He puts on no grave, ponderous airs. From the time he escaped serving behind the counter of a country store, a job he didn't like, he has enjoyed his work—which included handling horses on a farm before he became office boy in a small-town bank.

* * *

Some of the men who have succeeded in remaining very much like big boys are Coleman duPont, of many and varied successful enterprises and now United States Senator; Thomas Wilson, the packer; Edison, Seward Prosser, Percy H. Johnston, Charles H. Sabin, Clarence Dillon, Frank A. Vanderlip, Joseph W. Harriman, Harvey D. Gibson, New York bankers; Henry Ford, Cyrus H. K. Curtis, the publisher; Samuel Vauclain, the locomotive builder; Charles A. Stone of electrical engineering fame; Edward A. Filene, the Boston merchant, and many others, particularly among the younger generation of leaders.

To be genuinely successful—successful in life as well as in business—it's a good idea to strive to retain the qualities that go to make up a fine, healthy, robust, happy, enthusiastic, daring boy, eager to win, but never broken-hearted because of hard knocks or hard falls.

STEELS ACTIVE AND COPPERS ADVANCE

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Gains were the rule on the New York exchange at the close of a fairly strong market. Steels, like oils and motors, were somewhat irregular as to price changes. Coppers ended strong, although below their highest. Tobaccos made a good showing. Rails were quiet but steady. Trading was active, transactions approximating a million shares.

Closing gains included American Ice, 4½ at 106½, after selling at 108; Lackawanna Steel, 1 at 78½, its highest for the day being 81¼; Crucible, 1 at 71⅝; Anaconda, ⅝ at 53⅝, after selling at 54; Chino, 1 at 29¾, having been up to 30.

Kennecott, 1¾ at 36, its day's highest; Studebaker, 3⅝ at 118⅞, its high for the day; Baldwin, 1½ at 115⅞; Mexican Petroleum, 1⅜ at 129¾; United States Steel, ¾ at 98¾, after selling at 99⅜; Retail Stores, 3½ at 63¾, and Tobacco Products, 1½ at 70¾.

Bethlehem B was off 1⅜ at 77, after selling from 76⅛ to 78⅞. Reading was down 1 at 77½.

Irregularity prevailed at the opening but short covering caused a slow advance which continued late in the second hour when profit taking reduced gains of some issues. Traders looked for an advance on the strength of the Bethlehem-Lackawanna merger terms. The announcement verified expectations. Each Lackawanna share, it was stated after the directors of that corporation approved of the deal, is entitled to its par value in Bethlehem Steel stock consisting of 40 per cent. of 7 per cent. preferred and 60 per cent. class "B" common stock.

The upward movement continued until the last hour, when some issues reacted under realization sellings and others attained their highest for the day. Steels were the most active issues and coppers more in evidence than usual. They advanced because the price of metals is going up and the surplus is rapidly being wiped out. Oils were among the leaders. Pool activity was reflected by a number of specialties.

Call money opened at 3½ per cent. The Government withdrawal of $12,000,000 from New York depositories had no effect upon rates. Sterling was a shade lower, but action of the United States regarding The Hague conference had little effect upon foreign exchange. Continental rates showed mixed changes. Marks advanced a little.

Firm Undertone During Forenoon

By W. S. COUSINS.

Copyright, 1922, by Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, May 16.—There was a firm undertone to the stock market throughout the first part of today's session and while only in isolated cases did prices show a tendency to seek much higher levels than those which prevailed at yesterday's close there were fewer instances in which stock prices showed conspicuous weakness.

Lackawanna was against the leader in the independent steels and other steel shares were about one point above the prices which prevailed at yesterday's close.

The forward movement in the copper stocks was a continuation of the advance that has charaterized this section of the list since the re-opening of the copper mines early in the year. The copper companies have inaugurated a campaign to extend the use of copper and copper products.

Foreign Bonds Involve Risks

By MONROE ROBERTS.

Copyright, 1922, Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, May 16.—That the loaning of funds in foreign markets has its hazards as well as its advantages is shown by a report recently issued by the council of the corporation of foreign bondholders, an English protective organization concerned principally over foreign investments.

The total defaulted indebtedness of foreign nations to British investors is placed at the astounding sum of £1,832,079,244 sterling, on which the accrued interest to date is 414,260,651 pounds. Expressed in American money at the normal exchange rate this is equivalent to $11,000,000,000, or just about the amount of Europe's war debt to us.

BIG GAINS FOR TWO ISSUES IN BOSTON

The Boston market had an irregular opening, but prices worked upwards here during the morning and by noon the market was strong. Coppers advanced and rails were firm. Packing issues showed little change. Elder was an active issue, gaining a fraction. American Pneumatic common advanced a little and the preferred issue went down a fraction. For the list as a whole the price range was narrow, but Amoskeag soared 5 to 112, and Maine Central climbed 4½ to 45. Other large gains were Calumet & Hecla, 2 to 270; Ahmeek, 1¾ to 62; Calumet & Arizona, 1½ to 60¼; Osceola, 1 to 35; Quincy, 1 to 45; U. S. Smelting, 1⅛ to 41⅝; Island Creek, 1 to 113, and Boston & Maine D, 1 to 68½. Mohawk recovered a point loss and showed half a point gain. Boston & Maine B dropped 1 to 57.

In the afternoon strength was retained. Boston & Maine stocks sought a higher level. A, B and C issues showed gains of two points each in the last hour, while B was up five. John T. Connor gained 1¼ and International Cotton Mills preferred 3. Agricultural Chemical preferred declined a point.

CURB WAS WEAK.

Curb trading was of moderate volume, less than ordinary breadth and this market was weak all the morning. Leaders were Boston & Montana and Verde Mines. Gains at noon included Boston & Montana 4 cents at 26 cents and Eureka 1 cent at 25 cents. Among losses were Verde Mines 1 cent at 40 cents, Mutual 2 cents at 30 cents, Shea Copper 9 cents at 70 cents, United Verde Extension ¼ at 28¼, New England Oil 1 at 43, and Gadsden ⅛ at 1¼.

NEW YORK CURB IS IRREGULAR AT START

New York, May 16.—The New York Curb had an irregular opening. It was active and of unusual breadth. Oils, coppers, motors, tobaccos and specialties figured largely in early trading.

NEW ENGLAND INDUSTRIAL REVIEW

The Boston American every day publishes an up-to-the-minute review of industrial conditions throughout New England.

This will be found on the Financial page. Watch for it. Very latest news of labor and capital received from the Boston American's special correspondents and investigators.

Textile strikers in the Blackstone Valley in Rhode Island are "holding fast," according to their leaders, who say less than 100 of the 6,000 who went out have gone back. Elsewhere throughout New England, wherever strikes are in progress, there is the same do-or-die spirit on both sides. There is not within sight any real settlement of any of these major strikes.

There is little interest in the conference between the agents of the Nashua and Jackson Mills in Nashua, N. H., and the special aldermanic committee. The Lawrence mill men are following the general example and showing a polite readiness to "talk" but no desire to make any concessions.

Only 100 of 6,000 Quit in Rhode Island Stike

Pawtucket, R. I., May 16.—Of the 6,000 mill operatives on strike throughout the Blackstone Valley less than 100 have returned to work, according to announcement made at a meeting in Labor Temple by Organizer John J. Thomas.

"The morale of the strikers is excellent," Mr. Thomas declared.

The strike is now in its seventeenth week with settlement apparently far removed. The organization of United Textile Workers of America is appealing to State labor unions for additional funds with which to carry on the textile war.

State to Take Hand in Nashua Mills Strike

Nashua, May 16.—There appears to be but little interest in the proposed conference of the agents of the Nashua and Jackson Mills of the Nashua Manufacturing Company and the special aldermanic committee.

State Labor Commissioner John S. B. Davies has announced he will come here this week to confer with the mill agents. There are nearly 4,000 workers out of the mills and it is estimated that the loss in wages totals over $60,000 a week or over $780,000 since the strike started.

Havehill Workes to Aid Lawrence Stikers

Lawrence, May 16.—Twenty thousand Haverhill shoe workers have been asked by their union officials to contribute to the aid of the Lawrence strikers, according to One Big Union officials here. It is estimated that more than $10,000 will be received into the local union treasury from Haverhill alone. The executive council of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union, which has large memberships in both Haverhill and Lynn, has unanimously voted moral and financial support of their locals. Each member of the council personally donated a day's pay to the Lawrence strike fund.

The conservatives are mostly concerned with the distribution of aid to needy strikers' families. The radicals, equally concerned in the raising of funds have a permit for a big street parade for next Saturday.

Some Fitchbug Lines Showing Improvement

Fitchburg, May 16.—The industrial situation in Fitchburg shows signs of improvement in some lines. The Simonds Mfg. Co., manufacturers of saws and knives on North street, have gone on a six-day-a-week schedule with 375 employed in the various departments. As business increases more men will be added.

Officials in the Metal Trades Association say there will be work for large numbers of men before the summer sets in. Orders are beginning to come, estimates are being asked for. It is believed that when market conditions become settled, the high prices will decline, causing orders to come in.

Relief work is being carried on by a textile committee and a large number of strikers' families are being cared for. Much improvement in outside crafts is noted from day to day.

The Short SWINGS

—are difficult to foresee in a market period like the present.

Many successful traders never want to see the tickers or have their minds confused with tips and rumors as to day-to-day fluctuations.

They base their operations, both investment and trading, on a broad survey of technical market conditions — careful study of political, financial and industrial forces —and

TURMOIL ABROAD HITS BUSINESS

Washington, May 16.—Although business conditions are on the mend in this country, the improvement throughout the world, and particularly in Europe, since the war has "not been sufficient to justify optimism as to the future," Joseph H. Defrees, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, declared today in opening the tenth annual meeting of the chamber.

"When we look eastward," he said, "to the centre of modern civilization in Europe, to the markets of half our export trade, it is only the hopelessly ignorant or the incurable optimist who can work out any immediate assurance of comfort or stability.

"Hunger and its kinsman, Bolshevism, still stalk menacingly across the stage, wars and rumors of wars are yet in progress, boundaries are not fixed, governments are not secure, finances are in turmoil. Those things that we fought for, the defeat of militarism and the safety of our own and other free governments, have not yet been attained. How and when we shall aid, we who are most powerful to aid, in restoring stability in Europe in our own interest as well as in theirs are, I assert, the greatest and most immediate problems before American business today."

TEN DIRECTORS OF CHAMBER ELECTED

President Morss Reviews the Year's Accomplishments of Commerce Body

The annual meeting of the Boston Chamber of Commerce was held today in the Chamber building. Balloting for directors, which preceeded the meeting, resulted in the election of the following directors for the ensuing three years:

W. Irving Bullard, banker; Charles M. Cox, grain merchant; E. Fred Cullen, manufacturer; George H. Ellis, printer; Frank H. Purington, real estate operator; Francis W. Tulley, merchant; Edward F. Woods, insurance broker. Frank M. Eshleman, wool merchant; Henry G. Bradlee Sr., industrial engineer, and Oliver M. Fisher, shoe manufacturer, were also elected directors to fill unexpired terms.

The board of directors will meet later in the week to organize and will elect a president early in June to succeed Everett Morss, the incumbent.

In his valedictory address to the members, President Morss reviewed the work of the chamber for the past year. The mobilization of men and equipment to meet the threatened railway strike last October; the completion of arrangements for the erection of a new $5,000,000 chamber building; the union of New England interests to represent this territory in Washington; the organization of a bureau to furnish employment for war veterans; the investigation and reporting as to legislation affecting the community; the improvement of postal facilities; the establishment of an airplane landing field in East Boston; the action of the Maritime Association and Transportation Bureau in the matter of freight rate preferentials and other matters affecting transportation were some of the topics touched upon.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago May 16.—At the opening of the Board of Trade wheat was higher, following the Liverpool lead. Estimated receipts were moderate. Corn and oats advanced. "RADIO"

Preliminary Offering at $5 per share—Capital Stock of the Wireless Improvement Co.

For the past four years this company has made sizable profits through the manufacture of radio (wireless) telegraph and telephone equipment for governments and the largest private users.

The company is firmly established in the radio field and the wireless telephone receiving set for the home is one of the simplest forms of apparatus that it turns out.

Business available to the Wireless Improvement Co. is limited only by its ability to finance the business and it is for the purpose of raising a sufficient amount of working capital to permit of a quantity production of Radio Receiving Sets that a public offering of stock is now being made.

Our allotment of stock at $5 per share is limited. Subscriptions are invited at once.

Write for circular describing in detail past accomplishments, valuable patent rights and profit possibilities.

GOVERNORS AT N. H. HIGHWAY DEDICATION

Nashua, N. H., May 16.—New Hampshire and Massachusetts joined hands today to dedicate the great Daniel Webster Highway with elaborate ceremonies.

Music, a big automobile parade with thousands of machines and thousands of fluttering flags, addresses by Governor Albert O. Brown of New Hampshire and Governor Channing H. Cox of Massachusetts, but a native of New Hampshire, singing by school children, and more music are all on the program for the day.

Judge Charles R. Corning, president of the New Hampshire Historical Society, made the dedicatory address, which was listened to by thousands.

The ceremonies started with a band concert of the Nashua Military Band.

Twenty minutes later the program called for a luncheon to the two Governors, their aides and staffs, Mayor H. A. Bourque of Nashua and visiting mayors, justices of the Supreme Court and Judge Corning, at the Rotary Club.

This was followed by more music, the parade of the automobiles, community singing, addresses by Judge Corning, orator of the day at the State line four and one-half miles from the City Hall, and band concerts at various places.

TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB BUYS BUILDING

The Twentieth Century Club has purchased the estates Nos. 4 and 5 Joy street at a cost of over $90,000. With the expense of remodelling and other poyments on mortgage, the total indebtedness of the club in its new venture will amount to $129,000. The committee making the purchase of this property is W. H. Sayward, chairman; Dr. Jeffrey R. Brackett, Miss Mary E. Bradlee, W. C. Crawford, F. Rockwood Hall, W. F. Macy and Mrs. Eva W. White.

A Simple Way to Remove Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a thousand times better.—Advertisement.

Removes Hairy Growths Without Pain or Bother

(Modes of Today)

It is not necessary to use a painful process to remove hairy growths for with a little delatone handy you can keep the skin entirely free from these beauty destroyers. To remove hair, make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water. Spread this on the hairy surface and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. To guard against disappointment, be careful to get real delatone. Mix fresh as wanted.—Advertisement.

Was Bald

A large bald spot on Mr. John Brittain's head was quickly covered with a full hair growth. Many other convincing reports proving efficacy of Kotalko. Contains genuine bear oil and other potent ingredients. Has induced hair growth when all else failed. Test KOTALKO for yourself. It is for men's, women's and children's hair. You may obtain a box of genuine Kotalko at any busy drug store. Or mail 10 cents for proof box to Kotalko Office, BY-46, Station X, New York

'L' WANTS TO BUY LAND IN WEST ROXBURY

Mayor Curley has asked the City Council to pass an order allowing the Boston Elevated railway to buy 50,000 square feet of land, part of which is the old Parental School property on Spring street, West Roxbury. The Elevated wants to use the space for the construction of a loop, so as to avoid the trouble that at present exists in shifting trailers.

The $70,000 loan order for purchase of the property of the Beth Israel Synagogue on Baldwin place for a playground, was postponed again owing to the absence of Councillor Henry E. Hagan.

The Mayor vetoed orders for the reinstatement of Joseph W. Murray and Michael N. O'Meara in the fire department, and recommended that the city sell to James A. Doherty, for a nominal fee, a plot of land about ninety-four square feet on Snowhill street. He also recommended the sale of the wooden house at the corner of River and Winthrop streets, Hyde Park, for not less than $1,500.

The remaining four constables whose appointments have been hanging fire because of the protest of Councillor Moriarty, were confirmed.

SAY IT WITH A NIFTY IS NEW SLOGAN

Heads up.

Today's winning nifties:

SCHOOL OPEN ALL YEAR PLANNED

A plan calling for extension of the elementary school year to provide for an open, all-year school, and provision for an auxiliary high school in session practically all the year has been submitted to the Boston school committee by the board of superintendents.

The proposed high school would take care of pupils who fail in some of their courses in Winter and would also give other pupils the opportunity to take special courses in the Summer if they so desired.

The Michael Angelo School is suggested in the plan as the school in which to try out the experiment this Summer.

ASK $150,000 TO ENLARGE HARVARD SQ. STATION

A bill calling for the appropriation of $150,000 to provide additional platform space in the Harvard square station of the Cambridge subway was recommended by representatives of the city of Cambridge and of the Boston Elevated at a meeting of the Senate Ways and Means Committee. They asserted that present conditions in the station are unsafe, and urged that the bill be passed.

WINCHESTER SCHOOL PROGRAM IS UPHELD

SHE GAVE—HE TOOK

A gruesome picture our graphic cartoonist presents herewith. Be brave and study it in detail. Then temper its story to your spirit with your own fine thought.

You will easily recall the much-worked slogan which was used so effectively in appeals for the various Liberty and Victory loans and the many other drives which undertook to make a blend of patriotism, philanthropy and money so that the blend might duly spell successful war.

That slogan was GIVE UNTIL IT HURTS.

That slogan is the key to our cartoon. Also it explains the eagerness with which the country will spend the necessary time, money and energy, even four years after the armistice, to bring to book the soulless ghoul, the profiteering patrioteer.

The Department of Justice, the Congress and the country are equally determined to visit condemnation and punishment upon those found guilty of converting into private profit the public agony of war.

Also, incidentally, it is hoped that many millions of dollars will be recovered for the United States Treasury. However, this will never recover the precious lives which went into the murderous hopper fed by grim, devouring War.

To the profiteering patrioteer our heroic boys represented only so much opportunity to coagulate and convert life blood into miserable dollars. And the American mother—we have just observed the day sacred to her—she indeed might give until it hurt. As for him, inhuman hog, he took when it hurt—her and all of us.

An ugly and a painful theme. At least let it contribute toward our determination to keep America strong for peace and for all the constructive work and friendly relationships which make for peace and orderly progress.

Railroad Graft Stopped

Boston American Aided in Exposing Instances Where Repairs Were Given to Private Shops at Huge Cost

The Railroad Labor Board, a public body, regulating the relations between the railroad operators and the private managers of the railroads, who represent banker control, has issued an order to the railroads prohibiting their contracting out to private repair shops any more railroad repair work.

We presume that this rather tardy order was based upon the scandal which was revealed first by that very able labor chief, William H. Johnston, who called to the attention of the Interstate Commerce Commission the fact that the railroads were closing down their repair shops and turning over the business to repair companies, the directors of which were directors of the railroads.

The prices which the contracts revealed indicated that the railroads would have deliberately thrown away or rather passed over to these private repair shops, in which many of their directors were privately interested, nearly a thousand million dollars if the practice had been permitted to become universal.

The Boston American made an investigation at the time and aided in the exposure of this instance of railroad private mismanagement.

The railroads at the time were claiming that their help was inefficient, and this was one of their excuses for closing down their own shops, discharging their help and turning over the repair of locomotives to these private companies, in which their powerful directors were privately interested.

The Interstate Commerce Commission took the Pennsylvania Railroad for an example and summoned the president before them to explain these contracts and then held a hearing. It has recently made a finding, in which the claim of the railroad employes and of the Boston American has been completely vindicated and sustained.

Commissioner Eastman, in his characteristically able concurring opinion, says that the commission found that it cost the Pennsylvania Railroad $25,799 to have each of its engines repaired by a private company, while the same kind of engines were repaired in its own shops by its own much abused men for $9,453 each. This, mind you, was on the railroad management's own figures. He says further that the commission found, again on the figures of the railroad, that it cost $21,692 for the railroad to have the other type of engine repaired in a private shop, while its own employes, so much slandered with respect to their alleged inefficiency, made the same repairs on the same class of locomotives for only $9,889. In the one case, the railroad threw away 173 per cent. of the cost and in the other case 117 per cent.

This is private management for you. This is one of the first things that the private banker management did to the railroads immediately after the government foolishly turned them back. This is why it costs you so much to ride on a railroad today, and to get anything that comes to you on the railroad. This is only one typical instance of big and petty graft under private management.

At the bottom of your cost of living lies inefficiency graft and general dishonesty in the private management of the railroads. Nearly everything you buy comes to you over the railroads and when railroads are dishonestly or inefficiently managed, the cost has to be transferred entirely to you, and you pay for it by paying more for the things you buy, because the things that you buy are brought to you over the railroads and the increased freight rate to make up for this dishonesty and inefficiency is in the bill you pay for what you buy.

Friend of Labor

But They Wouldn't Have It

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

Lord Leverhulme, one of the greatest, most benevolent of English manufacturers, tells Americans "you were wise to stay away from Genoa." Americans know it, except a few, some of them in the government.

With everybody from Albania to Russia asking for a loan it is easy to understand why the United States was so urgently wanted.

Leverhulme is the Englishman that planned and would have given a six-hour day to his workmen and a five-day week. His idea was four shifts a day of six hours each, and two full days off.

The labor leaders might wisely have accepted the proposition as a start in a good direction. Perfected machinery and organization could have made up for the extra leisure.

But those leaders did not look far ahead. They demanded double and triple time for all work outside of regular hours and Leverhulme said, "Well, go ahead and work the old hours and six days if you prefer it."

YOURS is the relentless way of life if born today, and any goal you set your heart on you should eventually achieve, for you have not only the courage of your convictions, but the resolution to apply them.

You are stern and rigid in your character, as well as your morals, and you neither give nor ask quarter of your foes; you intend to be among the fit that survive. You probably will be among the fittest, but seldom leading them, for your nature lacks the touch of devoted idealism which stamps the leader of men, and you will never secure the allegiance of your followers half so much through love as you will through force of superiority. You are rather to be feared than envied.

You are resourceful and self-reliant, and you should endeavor to work in a position where you are answerable only to yourself for your successes and your failures. You have neither the loyalty nor the patience to thrive under strict supervision.

A child born today will be energetic and self-reliant from youth through manhood, and the type that will benefit more from its own experience than from the teachings of others.

Smiles

NOT A POPULAR IDEA.

An old fogy, according to the new idea, is any man who thinks it is useless to waste time trying to get something for nothing.

* * *

WHY MAKE PETS OF THEM?

Most men treat their weaknesses with more consideration than they deserve.

* * *

OF COURSE

There was a young lady named Kent,
Who always said just what she meant.
Folks said: "She's sincere
And she speaks without fear."
So they shunned her by common consent.

YOU HAVE ONLY YOURSELF TO BLAME

By Dr. Charles Fleischer.

THE PRINCESS BIBESCO inherited a sprightly tongue from her mother, Mrs. Margot Asquith. Or has she merely learned from maternal example how to use it effectively?

Or is the human—not to say the feminine—tongue or organ rather loosely hung in its capital cavity closely hemmed with twin rows of ivory?

Mrs. Asquith was cruelly characterized, by a late English poet who had suffered her fangs, "The Woman With a Serpent's Tongue." One cannot tell whether her princessly daughter of London, Bucharest and Washington was making a confession for herself or on behalf of her mother, when she named her recent book of stories, from the title of its first one, "I Have Only Myself to Blame."

Spiritual Dentist

At any rate, you have only yourself to blame, if your dental soldiers do not effectively guard your easily wagged tongue against too much and too irresponsible movement.

Perhaps, you need to consult a spiritual dentist.

He may tell you, after the enlightened manner of the modern oral surgeon, that your teeth are responsible for trouble in other parts of your complicated organism; or, indeed, that defects elsewhere cause the weakness of your teeth.

To stop using these painful figures of speech and to talk in terms of plain prose, let us say that if your tongue is too active, you really have only yourself to blame. Most likely, your spirit is out of order, and you need to acquire self-control.

You know the familiar story of the pet parrot, left sunning on his porch perch during the absence of his mistress. It kept whistling to a passing bulldog. When the mystified pup finally discovered his teaser, he punished the parrot until he lay there, only a dilapidated memory of his former feathery glory.

Shaking himself together, he was finally sufficiently reassembled outwardly and inwardly to say: "I guess I must have talked too d—— much!"

At least, the one-time pretty Pol knew he had only himself to blame.

Other Defects

A further word on the placing of the blame is desirable. Your unruly tongue is not your only mischief maker. Without calling you a miserable sinner or insinuating that you have reached perfection in failure, presumably one may take for granted that you have other defects and active faults besides the fatal lingual fluency, which you are soon to cure.

Honestly, now, don't you think that you have only yourself to blame for all your negative shortcomings and all your positive wrongdoings?

With all our spiritual sympathy—based upon our knowledge of the influence of heredity and environment—we cannot do otherwise than hold you to full moral accountability.

So you may as well say bravely: "I have only myself to blame!"

By that same token, you are entitled to a proper, but modest, pride in every achievement, material or spiritual, which proves you to be finely SELF-MADE.

EX LIBRIS

By Zoe B. Faber

"THE SCARLET TANAGER" in a brilliant cover to match, is one of this month's contributions to the new books. The book, which is by J. Aubrey Tyson, is published by McMillan.

The time is set for 1930 (a popular date of the moment) and the action covers something like forty-eight hours.

There is no denying the fact that the yarn is an engrossing one and that J. Aubrey Tyson is rather unusually skillful in scattering abroad and gathering up the threads of a mystery story. "The Scarlet Tanager" (Miriam Warburton) is the only woman in the cast, and, as a consequence, she stands throughout the story as a character of extraordinarily vivid personality.

The two men of importance, Rennison and Seafalcon, are also well done. In fact, all the character delineation is very good.

The plot is, to a certain extent, rather novel and one that you will find pricking your curiosity up to the last page.

If you care to read between the lines, the book suggests all manner of speculation on the strange and devious ways that are possible, if not plausible, for controlling the ugly canker of bolshevism.

It's a rattling good detective story, aside from anything further, and we are quite sure that you will have an evening of real enjoyment out of it.

Collecting U. S. Stamps

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Stamp collectors have purchased more than $12,000 of stamps from the Postoffice Department since the philatelic (stamp collecting) agency was created January 1.

This represents the actual face value of the stamps, and not the intrinsic value placed on them because of rare issues or peculiar markings that enter into the collector's valuation.

During the month of March sales reached $6,500. January sales were between $1,500 and $2,000. Postmasters throughout the country have been called upon to send to the philatelic agency all remaining lots of old or rare issues they have in stock to supply the requests of collectors. The Shanghai Postal agency has been directed to send back all stamps with the Shanghai over-print, which are in great demand by collectors.

One of the most enthusiastic stamp fans in the country is Representative Ackerman of New Jersey, who is said to have the finest collection of American stamps in existence.

ARE YOUR CHILDREN OF REAL IMPORTANCE TO YOU?

Which is more important, to please a few outsiders and a selfish desire on your own part, or to keep yourself in shape to be a companion to your children and a real helpmate to your husband or your wife?

Are you able to see matters in their true relation, even if it goes against your inclinations?

Which is more important, "the crowd" or your own kiddies?

Do the children find the doors locked when they get home from school, and, though they know where to find the key, run around the neighborhood or the business districts, ice cream parlors and the like, rather than go in and feel lonely?

What business have you with children if you cannot continue to be interested in their welfare, even after they are in school?

You need not look so indignant, and say that "you guess you can attend to your own affairs."

If the "man about town" and the proprietors of shops know better than you do where your children spend their after school time you are not doing your duty.

SEEN AND HEARD

By Lambert and Daily

REPRESENTATIVE EDWARD F. HARRINGTON of Fall River, now completing his fourteenth term, is easily the dean of the Legislature in point of continuous service.

The two most promising debaters in the House are REPRESENTATIVES Merle D. GRAVES of Springfield and EDWARD J. CAREY of Framingham. Carey, being a genuine progressive, has the edge on Graves.

The members of the Mayor's official family, that is, the gentlemen attaches, are wondering just what LUKE SHIELDS, secretary of the City Employment Bureau, meant when he gave each one of them a tube of shaving soap. "BILLY" O'NEIL is under the impression that Luke got away with it by a close shave.

JOHN E. BALDWIN, clerk of the committees of the City Council, is a quiet unassuming sort of a chap. "John" was president of the old board of aldermen before the new city charter wiped that body out. If you want to find out anything in regard to the council and their deliberations, and you are in doubt as to whom to ask, don't forget that he is one who will be pleased to serve you, and you will find him just as efficient as he is accommodating.

SCHOOLHOUSE COMMISSIONER THOMAS P. GLYNN has a new monocker, "Argument Extraordinary." He won this distinction following a verbal debate with a former mayor, in which he, to the surprise of all all present, got in the last word. SECRETARY MICHAEL J. WARD was the referee, and handed the "bacon" to Mr. Glynn.

Have you seen the nifty alpaca coat that JOHN H. L. NOYES of the registry department is sporting these days? John says that it is the real goods and cost him five iron men to get it away from the maker.

There seems to be a great attraction in a certain town about fifty miles southeast of City Hall on week-ends. First, MICHAEL J. WARD, secretary to MAYOR CURLEY, spends a few hours there, then "BILLY" O'Neil silently wends his way six hundred feet above the sea level and finally, to clap the climax, "MATT" REILLY is appointed special courier to take two important dispatches to a certain party. Wonder which one he will deliver first.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON GEOMETRY AXIOMS

By Garrett P. Serviss.

"In school we are taking up, in arithmetic, pyramids, angles, lines, etc. The other day, while reciting, I had an argument with the teacher about a straight line. I said there was no such thing as a straight line, if extended far enough. She said there was. Will you kindly advise me on this question? Is there any such thing as an absolute straight line?—Dorothy Jane McDermott, eighth grade, aged thirteen years, Waukegan, Ill."

IT will be well for you, Dorothy, in your school studies to accept the "straight line" just, as I presume, you accept the circle, as an ideal perfectly capable of being grasped mentally, although it may be very difficult to attain in practice or to draw on a blackboard. You have evidently been reading about the Einstein theories, and "non-Euclidian geometry." I advise you to let these alone for the present.

In the first place they demand a knowledge of "higher" mathematics, which you cannot have acquired at your age, and in the second place it is not yet by any means certain that these theories will stand the severe tests to which they are going to be subjected within the next few years. Even this year, during the eclipse of the sun to occur in September, photographic observations will be made on the stars seen near the sun which may upset the Einstein "proof" of a "curvature of space."

Accept Geometry Axioms.

You evidently have a good mind, and you ought to do nothing to cloud your clearness of thought. Begin, then, by accepting the axioms of geometry, and drawing its conclusions according to those axioms, until ([illegible] that could ever happen) you are prepared to prove that they are wrong.

Even if the Einstein theories should eventually be accepted by everybody, human affairs and human thinking would continue to be governed by Euclidian geometry and Newtonian mechanics, because they accord with human experience.

Believe me, you can never understand your "pyramids, angles, lines, etc.," if you reject the idea of the straight line. You say you told the teacher there was "no such thing as a straight line if extended far enough." You seem to admit, therefore, that there may be a straight line if it is not too long.

Very well, are you prepared with any other reason why a very long line should not be straight except the purely speculative one that space may be curved? Even if that were true, and if it were a fact that no line of light from a star passing through space could pursue a perfectly straight course, the Euclidian "straight line" would not be affected. The idea of such a line is perfectly plain to ordinary common sense. No conception that we can form in the mind is more limpidly clear.

When It Curves.

What does the line of light from the star do if it curves? It departs from a straight line! What does the mind instinctively demand when it sees a curvature of that sort? It demands why the line curves, or the cause capable of accounting for the curvature. That is not the case when we see anything apparently pursuing a straight course.

Then we simply demand to know what set it in motion—not why it goes in a straight line, for that it should thus go is exactly what we expect it to do. It is the departure from straightness that seems to call for explanation. When you throw a stone you have an inner sense that it would go straight if it were not for the attraction of gravitation curving it downward.

HIS KNOWLEDGE OF WOMEN LIMITED TO FEW TYPES

By Winifred Black

(Copyright, 1922, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

THE Man Who Understands Women gave a lecture the other night and all the women with a dollar to spare crowded to hear him talk. There were only three men in the audience.

Somehow men never seem to like a Man Who Understands Women.

I'm afraid I agree with the men.

The Man Who Understands Women, or thinks he does, always seems to mean one particular kind of woman, and she seems to be so very simple that anybody, even an infant in arms, could understand her.

She's vain and she's silly, and she's deceitful and she's jealous, and she's catty and she is nearly always rather more than a little naughty.

If she is good—she's good because she has to be—never because she wants to be.

If she's wise—she's worldly wise.

If she is clever—she's just the echo of some clever man who endured her stupidity long enough to teach her to parrot him.

She's pretty—she can't help it, and it's no credit to her.

If she's kind—she's just trying to curry favor with some man so that he will buy her a string of pearls or something.

She really is getting to be a good deal of a nuisance—the woman. The Man Who Understands Women understands.

Where on earth does he meet her? Who is she and what is her real name?

I know a good many hundreds of women—thousands, I think—and the only place I ever saw one in the least like the heroine of the Man Who Understands Women—was in the police court or in the divorce court or in the movies or in a cheap novel, or in a cheap and lurid melodrama.

What rubbish it is to talk about "understanding women," as if all women were exactly alike—all cut out by the same little paper pattern.

How many women do you know—yes, you who read this—who are very much like each other?

There's Mother. Mother's plain and practical, honest as the day, straight as a die—a little sharp in her judgment, maybe a trifle fussy over the exact way the chairs ought to stand—and oh, how it worries Mother if you waste a nickel's worth of lettuce when you make the salad.

Mother's daughter, Betsy, is romantic and up-the-airish—and Betsy doesn't mind stretching the truth just a tiny bit if it happens to be convenient.

Katherine — she's Mother's daughter, too, and is she like Mother or like Betsy in any single way? She is not!

Katherine is artistic. Anything out of order hurts her terribly.

You ought to see her mother's face when she talks about the things Katherine likes to cook.

But Betsy won't marry anyone unless he's a millionaire or a duke or something.

Katherine? Oh, Katherine will step out some evening and marry a dark-eyed stranger without a cent to his name and not the least idea of ever getting one—and she'll spend the rest of her life trying to pretend she's perfectly happy!

What a pose it all is, after all, this "understanding women," and how tired we do get of it!
